Allies Promise Full Military Aid to Norway

Chamberlain, Reynaud Make Pledges
Which Are Backed By Reports of Naval Engagement in Progress
Off Norwegian Coast.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—A battle between British and German warships was reported in progress off the coast of Norway late today and the British Press association announced "there is reason to believe that good news may be forthcoming." Details of the battle were not immediately available. An official foreign office spokesman cautioned correspondents to be patient about naval development in far-away Scandinavian waters.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—The British foreign office was said authoritatively tonight to have reestablished communication with Norway and to have been informed that the Norwegian government are "in good heart and bent on resistance."

LONDON—(UP)—Great Britain and France advised Norway today that they are coming to her assistance immediately.

The Allied announcement was made in an official communique today after urgent sessions of both the British war cabinet in London and the French war council in Paris.

The Allies advised Norway that in view of the German attack upon her they will send full aid to Norway and will fight the war in full association with her.

"The necessary naval and military steps are accordingly being taken in conjunction with France," the communique said.

The announcement was made as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain went before parliament to make a statement on Allied plans to assist Norway.

Chamberlain announced today that Britain had given assurances of aid to Norway against Germany's invasion and that "powerful units of the British navy are at sea."

The prime minister's announcement was made to the house of commons in a review of the German invasion of Denmark and Norway at the same hour the Oslo radio—in German hands—had ordered Norwegians to cease evacuation of the capital immediately.

Chamberlain denied German charges that the Allies had intended to occupy Scandinavian territory and said such statements were "pure invention with no foundation in fact."

Describing Germany's occupation of Denmark and part of Norway, the prime minister declared:

"This fresh and rash and cruel act of aggression will redound to Germany's disadvantage and contribute to her ultimate defeat."

Chamberlain disclosed that Germany had demanded the surrender of Norway and had been refused despite threats that the nation would be "crushed."

"The British government have learned that the German minister at Oslo made a formal demand for surrender by Norway to Germany and said that in event of refusal all resistance would be crushed," he said.

"This demand was refused by the Norwegian government."

"We have now heard that fighting has started and there are press reports that Oslo and Kristiansand have been bombed. German troops landed in Norwegian territory at various places."

He said that Germany's claim that the Nazi invasion was in reprisal for the laying of Allied mines in Norwegian territory "will, of course, deceive no one."

The prime minister said that German plans for the invasion of Scandinavia were elaborately worked out before the Allies mines were laid.

"So elaborate an operation, involving simultaneous landings at a number of ports by troops accompanied by naval forces, required planning long in advance," he said.

He said that "the members (of the house) realize that it would not be in the public interest to give details at this stage of any operations in which they (the British navy) are now engaged" to aid Norway.

British naval units already operating up and down the Norwegian coast line appear to be in a position to move in immediately to (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

Scandinavian Capitals Fall Prey to Nazi Troops

Nazi troops early today moved into Copenhagen, capital of Denmark, (shown above), and into Oslo, Norway's capital, (shown below), as Germany launched a blitzkrieg against her neutral northern neighbors in retaliation for British mine laying in Norwegian waters. Copenhagen was reported to have yielded without resistance. At Oslo the Nazis admitted encountering opposition. The Norwegian government fled from the capital before it fell. Shown at right below is Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, U. S. minister to Norway, who first revealed the sharp turn of events in Scandinavia by telephoning the state department in Washington.

GERMANS ASK DANUBE PATROL

Balkans Reported Rejecting
Nazi Demand for Control of River by Police.

(By Associated Press)

BELGRADE—The German government, it was learned on high authority today, has demanded that Yugoslavia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania accept German river police along the entire length of the Danube river to secure this vital supply route for Germany.

The demand was made after the German press accused Britain of plotting to dynamite the narrow Danube channel through the "Iron Gate" to cripple Germany's transportation of oil, foodstuffs and raw materials from southeastern Europe.

Rumanian police seized British barges loaded with dynamite, and the British said that the explosives were to have been used to blow up British and French Danube vessels in the event Germany invaded Rumania.

(It was learned that Hungary, Yugoslavia and Rumania previously had "tentatively" rejected the German demands. Then they were made a second time.

Bulgaria was understood reliably to have agreed and it was reported that German river police already were patrolling the Bulgarian Danube borders.

Diplomatic quarters here believed the demand was a possible forerunner of a German move into southeastern Europe to obtain Rumania's oil and Yugoslavia's copper as well as vast raw materials available in Bulgaria and Hungary.

3,000 American Nationals Caught In Scandinavia; President, Hull Hurry Back to Capital.

BULLETIN

HIGHLAND, N. Y.—(AP)—President Roosevelt left for Washington by special train today to devote his full attention to Europe's expanding war. A press conference was scheduled aboard the train.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The explosive spread of Europe's war to Scandinavia confronted the administration with three urgent problems today:

1. The safety of some 3,000 American nationals caught in the new theater of hostilities.

2. The question of a new presidential proclamation formally designating Norway—and perhaps Denmark—as a belligerent under the neutrality act.

3. The matter of protecting American shipping interests in the invaded countries, and possible action on extending the proscribed (Continued on Page 3, Col. 4)

Finds Industry Leading Own Way Back to Prosperity Era

By Virgil A. Stanfield
Terming the New Deal "a little group of Harvard lawyers in Washington trying to change the business life of the country," W. J. Cameron, head of the public relations department for the Ford Motor company, told an audience of business and industrial men last night at Shelby that "never in industry has there been an important improvement that did not come from industry itself."

Cameron addressed more than 600 men at a meeting of the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club in the Shelby high school auditorium. His talk followed a dinner meeting attended by nearly 400 in the First Lutheran church in Shelby.

"American business is definitely on the way to a new era, but it emerged under its own power. We threw off our false hopes after realizing that government can't do anything for business or anything to it," Cameron said.

"There is need for caution in trying to find the cause of this improvement. We hear that business is back to the high level of 1929, but that can hardly be true, for conditions then were not what they are today—we are about 10 years and 24 billion dollars behind."

Holding high hopes for American business and industry, Cameron said "the eternal sparkle of the American spirit will bring the nation back to the greatest era of prosperity it has ever known."

"The vital point is that the improvement that began in 1938 (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

Late War Flashes

PARIS—(INS)—A report that the 26,000-ton German battleship Gneisenau, one of the crack units of the Nazi fleet, has been sunk in a battle in Oslofjord was received in Paris today. The ship normally carried a complement of 1,461 men. The advice, so far unconfirmed, stated that the Gneisenau went down under heavy fire from Norwegian coastal batteries before the occupation of Oslo.

LONDON — (P) — The supreme war council of the Allies met today at No. 10 Downing street with Premier Paul Reynaud and Defense Minister Edouard Daladier representing France.

LONDON —(INS)—Nazi Germany will claim possession of Greenland and Iceland as a result of Denmark's surrender, it was reported in London today. Both are possessions of the Danish crown. Reliable sources here said that the allies were unlikely to make a free gift of possessions which would give Germany valuable naval and air bases, as well as shipping connections with America.

STOCKHOLM—(UP)—It was reported here today that German marines, disguised as seamen, have landed from German ships and have occupied the Norwegian ports of Narvik, Bergen and Stavanger. The marines, it was said, landed at Narvik from a German iron ore freighter.

LONDON—(UP)—A Swedish broadcast intercepted in London today said that a company of Danish soldiers attached to the First defense infantry had surrendered with full battle equipment to Swedish authorities, who have ordered their internment.

NEW YORK—(UP)—A squadron of British bombing planes which invaded northwestern Germany this morning was repulsed by German pursuit ships, said an official Berlin broadcast picked up by NBC. The announcer said several British planes were shot down.

LONDON—(UP)—The foreign office announced late today that the staff of the British ministry in Copenhagen, Denmark, had been taken prisoner by the invading German expeditionary force.

BERLIN—(UP)—The official DNB news agency said today that negotiations between German and Danish officials at Copenhagen had resulted in a "Danish assurance of complete loyalty."

LONDON—(INS)—Soviet Russia "sees no reason for military intervention in Scandinavia," a Russian embassy spokesman said today. "Reports that Russia is contemplating a renewed invasion of Finland are ridiculous," the spokesman declared.

BRUSSELS—(AP)—Belgium's frontiers remained quiet today but this capital city buzzed with news of the German invasion of Norway and Denmark. Defense Minister General Henri Denis conferred with Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak and a military spokesman said Belgium's army was ready, as always, to meet any attack.

OSLO, Norway—(UP)—German and British airplanes battled over Oslo as Nazi armed forces invaded Norwegian territory today and reports circulated that a great Allied war fleet was speeding over the North sea to the Norwegian capital.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — An official communique from Oslo, capital of Norway, to the Norwegian legation in Washington said today the coastal city of Bergen, second largest in the country, had been "occupied" by Germany.

(By Associated Press)

German land, sea and air forces today invaded Norway and Denmark, quickly capturing their capitals, Oslo and Copenhagen.

Other strategic points fell too, before the Nazi onslaught extending the European war far into Scandinavia.

Situated at Germany's mercy, Denmark gave in without a struggle as far as was known.

Norway put up a fight. The government fled to Hamar 60 miles north of Oslo. The United States minister, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, followed the government and said the Norwegian royal family also had gone to Hamar.

Dispatches reaching Stockholm said the Norwegians had set up a defense line between Oslo and Hamar and had shot down two German planes.

Paris heard the Allied fleet already was fighting engagements with the German fleet off the Norwegian coast.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, pledging full Allied aid to Norway, said in the house of commons only that "powerful units of the navy are at sea" and that details must be kept secret.

This afternoon the German government announced that the Norwegian capital, Oslo, had been occupied without incident.

The German radio said Denmark had decided to accept "German protection." The German high command said occupation of Norway was "proceeding rapidly" and that "a slight local resistance by Norwegian troops has ceased."

Germany handed identical notes to the Norwegian and Danish governments asserting the invasion was aimed at getting the jump on the Allies who were accused by the reich of planning a similar "surprise occupation" themselves.

Urging the Scandinavians to refrain from resisting, Germany said she was taking the two nations under her "protection" for duration of the war to guard vital German supply sources.

Direct communications with the invaded nations were disrupted, but these pieces of the grim war picture emerged: Trondheim and Bergen on Norway's west coast were occupied; possibly Narvik, the vital iron port, too. The headquarters 60 miles farther south at Hamar. Four German warships were driven off from Oslofjord by coastal batteries. Kristiansund was bombed.

The United States minister to Norway, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, reported "Norway is at war with Germany," the only official statement which reached the United States government.

There were indications an important German-British maritime battle had been fought somewhere off Scandinavia but the British admiralty would make no comment.

While attention was riveted on the suddenly-created northern war front, Belgrade reports said Germany had demanded that Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Rumania accept German river police along the entire length of the Danube.

The report followed close on German charges yesterday that Rumania had uncovered a British plot to blow up a Danube bottleneck with dynamite barges.

Sweden was reported to have ordered swift mobilization. The Netherlands cancelled any further army leaves.

Italy offered no comment, but the German ambassador called on Premier Mussolini to tell him about Germany's newest military stroke.

While events were moving rapidly in the northern nations, the German air force again raided Britain's Scapa Flow naval anchorage. Britain admitted no damage but the Germans said at least one battleship had been hit.

An official statement from Berlin said the German invasion had been ordered to "protect" Norway and Denmark "against hostile invasion."

Claim Roosevelt Has Chance to Sew Up Convention

PRESIDENTIAL SUPPORTERS SEE VICTORY

Garner Group Expects Enough
Votes to Check Third Term Move.

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt's supporters today have a chance to sew up the Democratic convention for a third term nomination as Illinois and Nebraska stage presidential primaries to test the sentiments of 4,500,000 voters.

A smashing eight to one victory for the president over Vice President John N. Garner in the Illinois primary—as predicted by New Dealers—would be interpreted by national politicians as clinching a third term nomination. A lesser victory for the president would send the president's cause merrily on its way, subject to stiffer opposition within his own party.

Third term foes predict Garner will get 20 per cent of the Illinois vote. If he does, they add, it means he has enough followers who oppose a third term, to defeat Mr. Roosevelt for reelection, if he does seek it.

The Garner claims are challenged by New Dealers, who insist Mr. Roosevelt will be renominated if he wins the Illinois primary by any kind of a majority. They point to the delegate column, in which they have rolled up 132 out of 134 delegates elected thus far. With Nebraska's 11 and Illinois' 58 added to the present total, they assert Mr. Roosevelt's renomination cannot be stopped. The president is certain of the 14 Nebraska delegates, as he is unopposed in that primary.

With a Roosevelt victory appearing certain in Illinois, capital politicians show more interest in the Nebraska GOP primary, in which Racket-buster Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, cross swords for the second time. Dewey won the first combat in Wisconsin by a two to one majority.

Apple Milk and Grapefruit Dye Are Developed

(By Associated Press)
CINCINNATI—Apple milk is going to make both medicine and candy, grape fruit will appear in women's clothes as part of beautiful dye instead of stains, and a bucket of engine oil will be made to smell like fresh fruits and old fashioned flowers.

These are discoveries of new chemical processes reported to the American Chemical society here today. All are of immediate industrial value, and part of a host of new industries produced recently through chemistry.

The apple milk, developed in Virginia, contains the ingredients of apple already widely used for infant diarrhea. It contains apple pulp and skim milk.

The grapefruit contribution to colors comes from a new industry starting in Florida to make oil out of grapefruit seeds. The oil is reddish-brown, bitter but with a pleasant nut-like smell.

The bucket of engine oil is raw material for newtypes of perfumes resembling those of nature herself in producing odoriferous substances, reported from Columbia university.

CHURCH GROUP STAGES PLAY

SHELBY—The one-act comedy, "Our Minister's New Car," was presented by a cast of members of the Women's Home Missionary society of First Methodist church at the church basement Monday night.

The production was directed by Mrs. Tessie Meyer. Also included on the program were selections played by the high school string quartet, an accordion solo by Anna Lee Irey, and readings by Mrs. Meyer and Miss Sally Van Horn. The quartet was made up of Edith Durst, Eloise Walker, Nancy Nimmons and Charlotte Kime.

Up and Down THE STREET

Clarence L. Van Derau, president of the Chamber of Commerce, had a neat souvenir from the groundbreaking ceremonies held last week to mark the start of construction of the new Pennsylvania passenger station here. When an old rusty spike was pulled from a tie to launch the project "Van" pocketed the metal pin. He had it chromium plated and now it reposes on his desk as a paper weight.

The Hartman Suspenders company doesn't claim to "circle the globe," but it does claim to have made one of the biggest belts ever worn by a man. Carl Hartman was in Cleveland Sunday and met the fat man of the Ringling Brothers circus, who is appearing in the lake city with an attraction before the circus starts its season. During the conversation Hartman mentioned that his business was making suspenders and belts. Yesterday the fat man L. H. "Tiny" Kistler stopped at the Mansfield industry's shop and ordered a belt. It is 72 inches long, four inches longer than his height, and is jeweled with colored sparklers which will flash under the lights.

One of the Red Cross highway first aid stations got a work out yesterday when a car turned over directly in front of the station three miles north east of here on route 42. Mrs. Albert Neill, Chagrin Falls, was taken into the station which is the Shellhass filling station and given first aid and treated for shock before the ambulance arrived. She was taken to General hospital for treatment for head and facial injuries.

Looking to the future when the "wide open spaces" of Liberty park will be shaded by large maple trees, Frank R. Burton, city parks superintendent, and members of the Liberty Park association, have just finished planting 50 shade trees along the park driveway and around the new shelter house. The trees, measuring from two to four inches in diameter and 15 to 20 feet tall, were hauled to Mansfield in trucks from a farm near Little Washington.

DIES AT HOME

Lumber Company President
Was Ill Two Years.

NEW LONDON—Sherman F. Blackman, 83, died today at his home here following a two-year illness. He is survived by his wife, Barbara, and a son, Clark Blackman, mayor of New London, and two grandchildren, Mrs. William B. Van de Grift of Baltimore, Md., and Dr. Randolph Blackman of Norwalk, and three great grandchildren.

He moved here in 1915 and was general manager of the Reynolds Lumber company and later became president. He was a member of the L. O. E. lodge.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Sackett funeral home, in charge of Rev. W. H. Mitchell of the First Methodist church. Burial will be in Clarksville cemetery.

LISTS DECLINE IN DELINQUENTS

Water Department's Unpaid
Bills Cut Down $10,000
In Year, Report.

The city waterworks had a delinquent balance of $5,717 on its books today—the lowest unpaid figure in the past 20 years, Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the department reported.

The figure represented a decrease of approximately $10,000 below that of a year ago when the unpaid balance totaled $15,819, water department records show.

A steady decrease in the delinquency total has been shown for the past four years, dropping from a staggering total which reached an all-time high of $35,993 in April of 1936, Lingafelter said.

The $30,000 decrease in the outstanding accounts was attributed to an extended campaign to "wipe out" the unpaid bills, waged by office employees who have directed all spare time to their collection, the secretary added.

It was also pointed out that better economic conditions locally the past few years and the use of labor in the department of unemployed persons who were willing to "work out" bills had also helped to trim the figure.

Lingafelter said the delinquent sewer rentals had also dropped to a new low. Outstanding accounts in that department on April 1 totaled only $700 as compared with a high of $1,862 in June 1938. The sewer rental charge had only been in effect about three years—since the opening of the new sewage disposal plant.

DIES AT AGE 56

John Von Wiehl Succumbs At Willard Hospital.

WILLARD—John Von Wiehl, 56, well known baker, died at the Municipal hospital here today. He was a native of France. Surviving are his wife, Rose, two sons, Kurt of Granville, Maurice, and a daughter, Mary Jeannette, both of Willard. The body was removed to the Fink funeral home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

SERVICES TODAY

BUCYRUS—Funeral services were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Wise funeral home for Samuel Zaroni, 51, resident of 338 Shekter street, who died in City hospital Sunday. Death following a major operation performed a week ago. Burial was made in Oakwood cemetery.

Survivors include the widow, Amelia Fara Zaroni, and two sons, Joseph and James, and four step-children and one sister living in Italy.

ON TOUR WITH CHOIR

Fifty-eight members of the Ohio Northern Capella choir stopped in Mansfield today on a concert tour which will take them through five states. With the group is Marlene Wierman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Wierman, 1000 Park avenue west. She is a soprano at Northern and sings soprano in the choir.

C. OF C. QUESTIONNAIRE SEEKS CLUE TO CURE FOR TRAFFIC ILLS

Joining the citizens' traffic research committee in an effort to analyze the city's traffic ills, the Chamber of Commerce today was preparing to mail to its membership a questionnaire containing 11 pertinent questions on the traffic problem in Mansfield.

Members will be asked to answer the questions and return them to the chamber together with any suggestions they might have to better driving conditions in the city.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager, said the questionnaires would be mailed within the next three days.

Routzon said the results of the poll would be presented to the traffic research committee, which was organized last week to study the city's traffic ills and recommend changes for improvement of the traffic problem.

Here is the list of questions:

1. Do you favor the installation of parking meters in the business district?
2. Do you think truck and trailer traffic should be by-passed around the city?
3. Do you favor the enlargement of the police department, the additional men to work exclusively on traffic problems?
4. How long do you or your family like to park when coming down town?
5. Do you think truck deliveries should be made in the downtown district during morning hours—in so far as is practical?
6. Do you favor reducing the present speed limits at night?
7. Do you think every individual should be required to pass an examination before a driver's license is issued?
8. Do you favor strict enforcement of traffic laws?
9. Do you favor compulsory inspection of motor vehicles?
10. Do you drive regularly, occasionally or not at all?
11. What annoys you most, glaring headlights, failure to signal, cutting in and out, road "hogging," careless pedestrians, unnecessary horn blowing, slow moving vehicles, no place to park?

RAILWAY MEN REVEAL PLAN NOW COMPLETE

Confer With Mayor on $28,000
Improvement on Mulberry,
North Main Streets.

Erie Railroad officials announced today that plans have been completed for installation of flasher signals at the Erie crossings at North Main and North Mulberry streets, the completed project to cost $28,000.

A. W. Baker, superintendent of the Marion Division, P. F. Nichols, engineer and Fred Post, signal supervisor, all of Marion, were in Mansfield today conferring with Mayor W. J. Locke, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton and City Engineer W. C. Statler.

Baker said that the $28,000 crossing improvements were in addition to the Erie's participation in building the new Union station. He explained that the Erie will pay 50 per cent of the cost of the new depot, under an old agreement with the Pennsylvania by which the two agreed to share the cost of all improvements on a union station in this city.

City officials have asked the Erie and the B. and O. over a period of years to install protection at their crossings in Mansfield. Mayor Locke has been in communication with railroad officials for the past three months.

In addition to installing flashers which must be tied in with the block system, the Erie plans also call for a "safety island" on North Main for pedestrians.

This will be a sidewalk and curb at the northeast end of Olive street which runs between Main and North Diamond parallel with the tracks. At present there is no pedestrian walk from the intersection of Main and Olive up to the tracks.

Equipment for the improvements already has been ordered, Baker said, and work will be started as soon as it arrives.

Mayor Locke said he will immediately contact B. and O. officials in an effort to get them to install flashers at their crossings at North Mulberry and Bowman streets, which will be the only ones left unprotected on the north side of the city.

He said that when the new flashers are installed all Erie crossings in the city will be protected 24 hours a day except at the end of North Diamond street, which runs into a private road on Ohio Brass property. The railroad company maintains a part-time watchman here who is on duty during the hours that the working shifts enter and leave the Ohio Brass grounds.

Police Continue 'Treasure Hunt' For Stolen Money

Columbus police today continued a "treasure hunt" in a field in the north section of the city for the rest of an $869 cache which two youths admitted burying last week after stealing the money from a car owned by C. R. Archer, said to be from Plymouth.

More than half of the stolen money was dug up yesterday by officers after two 16-year-old boys told them they hid it in the field. Police said the money was in a suitcase which was stolen last Friday from Archer's parked car.

Officers refused to disclose the location of the field for fear outsiders may start a "gold rush" before the rest of the loot is found.

PASTOR APPEALS THEFT VERDICT

Rev. Watkins Seeks New Trial
Following Conviction on Charge.

POMEROY—Released under $1,000 bond, Rev. Damon Watkins of Athens county today prepared to appeal his one to seven-year Ohio penitentiary sentence in a $33 theft.

Mr. Watkins, convicted by a jury several days ago, was sentenced yesterday by Common Pleas Judge W. R. White, who refused a new trial.

George Smith, an elderly farmer, charges the theft occurred while Rev. Watkins, former pastor of the Pomeroiy Church of Christ, roomed at his home during revival meetings near here.

INFANT SUCCUMBS

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Tales From Times Square.

Now and then the town sees a real romance with all the elements found all the time in fiction stories and so seldom on Broadway.

Fate wrote this one with a scenario writer's pencil, and tossed in Americans in Paris, Springtime, a music conservatory on the Left Bank, romance, war, separation.

Last spring in Paris Virginia Morley (the girl) and Livingston Gearhart (the boy) met at a music conservatory when they both were studying piano.

They admired each other's talent and had fun together, but they didn't realize it was love until they had lost each other in the shuffle when war came. Their mutual friend, Herbert Jacoby, whom they knew in Paris, realized it was love, though, as only a Frenchman can, and he played Don Ameche in the scenario.

Back in New York, he located both of them, and without each knowing that the other would be there, too, he hired them to play the piano at his Brevoort Supper club. They met again, they played duets, and it was spring in New York, with Don Ameche Jacoby beaming in the background.

The fadeout? They were married in Grace church last week.

Query.
A visitor from Hollywood was relaying the new Goldwyn legend to the tablesetters in the Tavern last night. It seems Sam was handed the script of a picture which had been worked on, cut, changed, doctored and rewritten by practically every writer on the lot. And all of them were given name credit on the title sheet. Sam looked at the list in disgust.

"Is this a script," he asked, "or a petition?"

Levity By Levant.
Oscar Levant dined in Colbert's the other evening. When he sat down at the table, a waiter rushed over and presented him with the huge involved placard that passes for a menu at that gourmet's establishment. Levant scanned it for a long time, while the waiter stood by respectfully.

"Sorry to keep you waiting," apologized Levant, pointing to the menu, "but I'm looking for the sports section."

Letdown.
Most of the foreign correspondents who wear those movie-usher uniforms have become accustomed to them, and figure they'll make great doormen when they come back to America—but the going was hard at first for New York newspaper men who were accustomed to plying their typewriters

Sure Fire.
Milton Berle did a guest radio appearance a few nights ago, and after the broadcast some of the boys at Lindy's asked how it had been received.

"Not bad," Milton replied blushing. "In one spot, I got six laughs in a row."

"Yeah," replied a heckler, "the row your mother was in!"

Nonsense.
Those daffy Hartmans were killing time looking at wrist-watches in a jewelry store, the other afternoon, and Gracie, who had no intention of buying anything, kept complaining that the watches weren't good enough.

"Bud, madame," said the salesman, "this one has the hours, the minutes, and the seconds."

"I know," snapped Gracie, "but where are the jiffies?"

Hollywood
Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

RENO, Nevada—The Hollywood preview junket really turned colossal this time. The premiere of the movie, "Virginia City," was all that advance ballyhoo promised it would be.

It brought a wholesale invasion of the divorce capital by Hollywood. All Hollywood had such a good time nobody once thought of establishing residence. It was probably the first time in movie history that a mob from Hollywood got within shouting distance of Reno and didn't ask the rates for a six-week stay.

As a first-timer here myself, I got a bit of a shock. I always had thought of Reno as a date-line for divorce yarns. Now I know Reno not only as a place where regrets are simplified, but as a strange wonderland of a town thriving amid natural beauties to which even Mark Twain never did complete justice.

Virginia City, a ghost town which came to bright life for the premiere, hangs precariously on the side of a snow-spotted mountain, glorying in the past and taking full advantage of its interesting present.

The view from the main streets would make a New Yorker swallow his gum and a Hollywooder call for a Technicolor, three-dimension camera. According to Death Valley Scotty, who was there when Virginia City wasn't thinking about movies, there wasn't much time in the old days to contemplate the view. The Virginia City folks were considerate, however. When they got to shooting things up, they usually excused the outsiders and made it a family affair. Scotty tells about the time he wandered into town, one Fourth of July in the boom days, and found the celebration practically over: a Virginia City lady had taken umbrage at some stray remark and, with her trusty six-gun had gone out and shot

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Arrange Banquet At St. Matthew's Church May 10

Plans were made for a mother daughter banquet to be held May 10 last night when members of the Mary Voegel Missionary society of the St. Matthew's Lutheran church met with Mrs. Harry Smith, Bowman street. Mrs. Charles Nussbaum was associate hostess. There were 17 members and one new member, Mrs. Robert Myers, present.

The committee appointed for the banquet includes Mrs. Wallace Walters, Mrs. Floyd Hunt, Mrs. Edward Mattox, Mrs. Franklin Spence, Mrs. George McVane, Miss Doris Bush, Mrs. William Mabey will be in charge of reservations.

Name Mrs. Rahn Club President

Mrs. Louis Rahn was elected president of the Bethel Bible club yesterday afternoon during a meeting at the home of Mrs. V. C. Ketter on Lexington avenue. Mrs. Leo Keifer will assist as the vice president. Mrs. R. S. Bernier has been named secretary of the group and she will be assisted by Mrs. C. H. Henkel. The new charity treasurer is Mrs. Mike Loris.

There were 17 members and two guests, Mrs. Frank Bissman and Mrs. John Jundt, present for the meeting, when Mrs. Keifer led the devotion, and Mrs. Loris read the lesson.

Mrs. W. H. Linn has invited the club members to her home, on Shepard road, for the next meeting, April 22. Mrs. Henkel will have charge of the devotion at that time, and Mrs. Keifer will present the lesson.

Appoint Committee At Prospect Club Meeting

D. G. Schooley, president, appointed Mrs. Gerald Wagoner, C. H. Rupert and O. A. Redhair to the nominating committee at the meeting last night of Prospect P. T. A. The officers will be elected at the May meeting. May 24 was tentatively selected as the date for the annual lawn fete.

Routine Reports Made At Auxiliary Meeting

Routine reports were made last night at the regular meeting of the American Legion auxiliary, when the group met at the home with Mrs. Robert Jones in charge. Mrs. Herman Houtzenroeder reported the sending of cigarettes to Mansfield veterans confined in the Dayton hospital, while Mrs. Karl Kahl announced that shoes, clothing, medical attention, and groceries had been supplied to veterans' families.

Plans were announced for a guest theater party for members and friends of the Junior Activities unit on April 20. An invitation to attend the open house at the Soldiers and Sailors home in Sandusky on May 5 was read, and the spring conference which will be held at Lorain tomorrow was also announced.

The next auxiliary meeting will be a guest party April 22 at the Legion home.

HONOR PAIR. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Porter (Martha Winkler) were honored with a shower last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wurtz, R. D. 5. The hostesses were the bridegroom's sisters, Mrs. Wurtz, R. D. 5. The hostesses Mrs. Darrell Hook. Games were played, and the awards were presented to the bride. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Honor Miss Beer With Shower at Urschel's Home

The first in a series of pre-nuptial parties honoring Miss Florence Beer was given last evening by the bridegroom-to-be's mother and sister, Mrs. Peter M. Urschel and Mrs. Lester Lantz, at the Urschel home on West Third street. Miss Beer and Jacob Urschel will be married on April 26 at St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church.

There were 20 guests in attendance at last evening's party, and the numerous prizes in the card games were presented to the honoree by the winners. Miss Beer also received a shower of miscellaneous gifts from the guests and the hostesses. Pink and yellow appointments decorated the small tables when luncheon was served at the close of the games.

Miss Kitty Jane Birch, who will serve as Miss Beer's attendant at the wedding, is entertaining with a party for her tomorrow evening. Miss Georgia Barrett will be associate hostess for this shower at the Birch home on Wood street.

Welty Society to Conduct Mission

Twenty-one members and six guests of the Florence Welty Missionary society of the First Lutheran church met at the home of Mrs. M. D. Harnly, 243 West First street, last evening. Miss Reba Robinson was the associate hostess.

Devotions were in charge of Mrs. Harold Eller, and the topic, "Women in South America" was presented by Mrs. Arthur Grau and Miss Marie Hoover.

During the business session, plans were formulated for a Mission Study day to be held this Thursday afternoon and evening at the church. Instead of the regular May meeting, the society members are arranging a banquet for mothers and daughters of the church. A social hour and refreshments followed the business last evening.

REVIEW TOMORROW. Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock Mrs. W. E. Benninghoff, Cleveland, will present her final review of the season at the First Congregational church under the auspices of the Women's Association. Because of her popularity with both men and women Mrs. Benninghoff has been secured for this repeat program Wednesday. She will review "Iron Brew," the novel by Stewart H. Holbrook. Tickets may be purchased at the door or from members of the association.

SORORITY TO HOLD MOTHERS' DAY PARTY

Both Chapters of Delta Theta Tau Plan Joint Breakfast for May 12; Socials Scheduled for Next Week.

WHEN members of Delta Theta chapter of Delta Theta Tau sorority met with Mrs. Homer Swift at the home of her mother, Mrs. Sidney L. Palmer, on West First street, last evening, they made further arrangements for a Mother's Day breakfast to be held on May 12. Members of Zeta Rho chapter of the sorority will entertain with them at this Sunday morning affair at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Next Monday evening the group will have pledge services and a party at Mrs. Norman Wolfe's home, 662 Park avenue west. Miss Helen Widders, Miss Virginia Anderson, Mrs. Carl Adams and Miss Helen Bunn will assist the hostess at that time.

At the chapter meeting of Zeta Rho held last night at the home of Miss Gerry Locke, 102 Sherman avenue, the Misses Betty Anderson and Maxine Coffman were named to assist with arrangements for the Mother's day breakfast. Plans were discussed for a benefit bridge party to be held soon with Mrs. James Ford, Miss Coffman and Mrs. Robert Oberlin in charge. Arrangements for attending the national Delta Theta Tau convention in Columbus this summer, and plans for informal initiation were also discussed.

The next meeting will be a social April 15 with Miss Anderson and Mrs. Ford in charge. The place will be announced later.

Mrs. Henderson Opens Home To 14 Members

Mrs. James E. Henderson was hostess for a meeting of the Katherine Aberle Missionary society of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church last evening at her home on Rhein avenue. There were 14 members and one guest, Mrs. Gordon McInnes of Buffalo, N. Y., in attendance.

The hostess conducted a short business session, which was followed by a social hour. Bouquets of daisies centered the small tables when refreshments were served. Mrs. Elmer Hedeon will have the next meeting, May 13, at her home on Chevy Chase road.

They Just Weren't In Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

A gentleman has written me such a nice letter that I hate to refute his arguments for a return of the good old days.

It seems there has not been a divorce in his family for over a hundred years, he having a Bible record which goes back that far, and before that, as he says, people didn't get divorces.

The trouble is with his oldest daughter who not only wants a divorce but expects him to supply the money. The young people who wish to sever their bonds are up to the minute in modernity. The young wife has a flat, chiefly run by electricity. Someone comes in once a week to do the heavy cleaning, and when they have friends in to dinner there's a cook and a waitress.

She belongs to a bridge club, is interested in two or three organizations which are pleasantly frivolous, is fond of going to cocktail parties and buys all her clothes ready-made. She and her husband decided, when they were married, not to have any children until they discovered how they were going to get along together. They don't quarrel but are mildly bored.

All said and done, Dad seems to sympathize with the husband, because on several occasions the wife telephoned her husband not to come home to dinner, as she would be detained at some function or another and would dine away from home.

Dad's daughter claims she's not in love with anybody, but she does want to go back to her job, the excitement of which she misses cruelly in her three-room, bath and kitchenette apartment. And then the old gentleman—he claims to be past 72—tells how the splendid women of his family not only cooked, kept their houses neat as a pin, made all the family clothes, including their husband's shirts, and pickled preserved and canned in the bargain. And he asks me what I think of such goings-on, as a girl wanting to leave a good husband to go back to an office to work, and declining to have any children.

It's the latter indictment of these young people which explains their lack of adjustment. They weren't really in love when they were married. They were just mildly interested or fascinated, or belong to that group which unblushingly admits they're "willing to try anything once."

Unless people are so much in love that they feel they can't live without each other, it's a mistake to marry at all. To my old-fashioned way of thinking it's a mistake to marry if women are unwilling to bear children. Surely nothing else brings so much happiness to a home as a baby. If you're going to consider the baby as if he were the new electric refrigerator that you may or may not add to your household possession, you're apt to be a pretty indifferent type of parent. All of which goes back to the basic requirement of being genuinely in love when you marry.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Lillian put her hand upon my arm in tender, comprehending sympathy.

"He isn't as ill as he looks, dear girl," she said, "although, of course, he is feeble. But I'm sure, with Miss Whitlock to care for him, and all of us to ride herd on him, there's really no cause for alarm."

"I hope not," I said, vaguely comforted, as I always am by her cheeriness.

"Let us know when you're ready for us," she said.

"We're going to take our time," Dicky rejoined. "We're not going to take any chances on you. We'll have the men go up the ladders to the windows and take them all out, so the wind will blow all through the place. We don't want to open this door down here leading to the attic until we're sure the gas is all out."

"All right! Get going!" Lillian adjured them. "Neither Madge nor I will be able to afford the devil any idle hands for his work. We have plenty of our own for every minute of the time you're gone."

"We shall expect the world to be completely remodeled upon our return," her husband said. Lillian then drew me back into my room and, putting me into a big chair, took one opposite me.

"Now breathe deeply and relax," she commanded, "for at least three minutes."

"Rested?" she queried, then answered her own question.

"I can see you're not," she said. "You're right on edge, but I don't know that there's anything to be done about it."

"It's the waiting around that's hardest," I ventured.

"Right you are!" she rejoined. "Suppose we remedy that little thing right now. Suppose you gather up your traps, so you can bunk in with me tonight—I'll have Harry park with Dicky—and I'll tote your things over to my room. Then you can get Ede and haul her over here to your room—by the hair, preferably—and let her jitter-lar head off. See if I shed any tears over that."

"If your bite were as bad as your bark," I told her, laughing, "I should fear for poor Ede's welfare."

"I'd like to scratch her eyes out," she said viciously, but with a laugh that belied the words. "Tell me what to get together."

I knew better than to protest her helping me.

"Just get that zipper bag from the closet," I said, "and I'll set out my toilet things for you to put in it, while I gather up the clothing I'll need for a day or two."

"Okay," she said. "Then I'll take them all out to the window ledge at the other end of the hall and park them there while you get Ede transferred from my room to yours. I have a hunch she'd just as soon not see me, if she can help it, and that arrangement suits me down to the ground. You might drop her a hint that as long as she behaves herself, I'll keep out of her hair, but by the Lord Harry, if she starts any more funny business with you or the Dicky-bird, I'll—"

"I don't think she will," I said, laughing at her vehemence. "She really seems very subdued and unduly remorseful."

"What do you mean, 'unduly'?" she demanded truculently. "If she crawled on her hands and knees to you for a year, it wouldn't be 'unduly.' Let me tell you something, Lady! If you let that woman bamboozle you again, I'll—well! you'll find out!"

New Breads Make Taste Appeal

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Bread is the staff of life, to repeat a fact centuries old. The commercial baker has accomplished marvels in the development of a wide variety of attractive breads, but even the best baker may not be able to supply all the interesting kinds of breads and rolls that live up to a meal. Modern homemakers do not like to spend hours and hours over large batches of bread, but when a few ingredients can be mixed together, tucked away in the ice box, and then later placed in the oven for a few minutes to emerge as steaming, golden appetizing rolls, it is a pleasure to run up a batch. Here are a few that should bring interest to any meal.

Quick and Easy.

Lazy Daisy Rolls, quick and easy, are made with a cake of compressed yeast, two and one-half cups lukewarm, scalded milk, two tablespoons sugar, one-half cup lard, two teaspoons salt, five cups flour. Dissolve yeast in the lukewarm milk. Cream the lard and sugar and add salt and yeast-milk mixture. Add flour, a half at a time, and beat until smooth. Allow to double in bulk in a warm place, 80 degrees F. for about an hour. Place the dough in greased muffin tins, trying to make one spoonful fill the muffin cup, two-thirds full, and being careful not to release much gas from the dough. Let rise again until double bulk, 20-30 minutes at 80 degrees F. Bake at 425 degrees F. for 20 minutes or until a golden brown. Brush with melted butter on removing from oven. Makes 36 medium-sized rolls. Cheese Rolls are made by adding one cup grated cheese to Lazy Daisy Roll recipe.

Bun Recipe.

Buns are made with one-third yeast cake, two tablespoons boiled lukewarm water, four and one-third cups flour, one-third cup sugar, seven-eighths cup scalded lukewarm milk, one-third cup melted lard, teaspoon salt and two eggs. Dissolve the yeast in the water. Add it to half the flour and all the sugar and milk. Let rise in a warm place to double its bulk. Add the eggs, and salt, the lard, and beat well. Add the rest of the flour, kneading until smooth and elastic. Let rise again until double in bulk. Shape into buns and place on a tin oiled with lard. Let rise until light, and bake at 475 degrees F. until brown, about 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 12-16 large buns.

Bread Crumb Griddle Cakes will do things for any meal. Make with one and one-third cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, teaspoon salt, two cups sugar, one cup stale bread crumbs, one-half cup boiling water, one and one-fourth to one and one-half cups milk, one well-beaten egg, three tablespoons melted lard. Add the boiling water to the bread crumbs and let stand for five minutes. Add the milk, beaten egg and melted lard. Sift the dry ingredients together and add the milk mixture, stirring only enough to mix well. Bake in hot griddle or skillet oiled with lard. Makes about 16 cakes.

HUNT FOR SURE ENTRIES

Entries into the dummy or your own hand are the vital factors in determining the fate of a great percentage of all contracts. A brief glance will sometimes reveal a probable way of getting from one hand to the other. A bit longer study, however, may show an absolutely certain means which was not apparent at first sight.

♠ 10 9	♥ A K Q J 6	♦ Q 10 5	♣ 7 5 3

3♠	Pass	3♥	Pass
4♠	Pass	4♥	Pass
4NT	Pass	5♦	Pass
6NT

Without even a singleton in his partner's suit, South was taking a high, wide and handsome chance in using the Blackwood convention and then jumping to the small slam in No Trump. As it happens, the grand slam is a laydown at hearts, though North surely cannot be blamed for not bidding it. He had every right to presume, from the bidding, that South had a singleton heart which would have made No Trump safe, in view of his own solid-looking suit.

If West had led a diamond, the contract would have been doomed, but he picked the club J. South won, then led to the diamond Q, trying to get into dummy to run the hearts. We won the club return after East took the second trick with the K, then lead to the diamond 10, losing to the J. He never did get into the dummy, and finished losing a third diamond.

Just a moment of greater study would have shown that spades offered a sure entry. A small spade lead to the second trick was the key to the hand. If West took this, six-odd would be made. If he ducked, the declarer could run all of the tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem.

♠ A Q 10 5	♥ A Q 8	♦ Q J 8 4	♣ A Q

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

With North and South using short-suit Club bids and "negative No Trumps," if North bids 1-Club here, South 1-No Trump, West doubles and North redoubles, what should East do?

Gardenia Members Play Bunco At Session

Mrs. Rose Hansrote was a guest of the Gardenia club last evening during a meeting at the home of Mrs. Grace Schellenberger, 151 West Third street. Mrs. Howard Schuck conducted the business, after which bunco was played at two tables. Mrs. Abbie Shade and Mrs. Schuck were the prize winners, while Mrs. Hansrote received a guest award.

The group presented Mrs. Schuck with a handkerchief shower in honor of her birthday. Fiesta colors decorated the small tables when luncheon was served at the close of the games. The meeting of April 22 will be with Mrs. Jane Reelman, 16 Atherton avenue.

ENTERTAINS TRIO.

Mrs. Victor Alderson, Lincoln Heights, is entertaining at dinner tonight in honor of members of the Melmore high school girls trio and their director. The group will sing later in the evening at the meeting of the Newman P. T. A.

RETURN HOME.

Mrs. W. M. Shoup, Kent, and Mrs. Angie Cates, Belleville, sisters of Mrs. Sadie Bolen, Poplar street, who have been visiting here during the latter's recent illness, have returned to their homes.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, April 10.

A progressive and adventurous day is the augury based on several benefic aspects of leading planets. Some rather surprising change, possible on unexpected promotion or a sudden change in plans or processes in employment or avocation, may call for a reorientation of the environs and objectives. In this, superiors, those in high standing financially and strangers may play a conspicuous part. These may be influential in large corporations, political, diplomatic or fraternal bodies, and should be cultivated since they are indispensable to major achievements.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of surprise in store for them, with change of environment, associates, employment and objectives. In this employers, superiors, strangers or those of prestige and high standing seem to hold key stations and may be beneficially cultivated. Corporations, clubs, fraternities and perhaps diplomatic or political organizations figure, being indispensable in putting over major ambitions.

A child born on this day may have much talent, originality, progressive ideas and ingenuity, but it may best flourish through the stability and organizing efficiency of superiors or influential persons because of its own inherent restiveness and changeability.

A Festival of Fools was held annually in Paris on January 1, from 1198 to 1438.

Stover Retains 14 Youths From Rookie School

Don Dudley, Paul Edwards Among Selections to Attend Braves' Spring Training Camp.

AT LEAST 14 youths attending the Mansfield Braves' rookie school are assured of a chance of winning a position on the Ohio State league entry's roster during spring training, it was announced today by Manager Dewey Stover.

Although Stover isn't satisfied with the results of the short workouts at the Fairground the past week, he had picked what he thinks is the "cream of the crop" to remain and start in the training sessions opening tomorrow.

Stover is enthusiastic about the performance of several of the rookies and expects them to push the regulars for posts when the Braves launch the season by entertaining the Lima Pandas at the Fairground May 1.

One of the leading candidates for an infield job is Bill Johnson, a first baseman from Akron. The 18-year-old youth is positive he'll be in the starting lineup.

"You might as well leave Harry Seigbert in Chicago because I'll be your first sacker this year," Johnson told Stover yesterday. Seigbert was a regular last season.

Tony Palamro, a heavy hitter, has been a standout during the brief infield workouts and Stover has high hopes for him. Palamro, who hails from Akron, turned in a faultless fielding job at shortstop.

Also retained by the Braves' chief is Paul Edwards, young brother of Hank Edwards, the Mansfield club's star right fielder last year. Paul is a third baseman and appears to be a dangerous man at the plate.

Don Dudley, a pitcher, and Russ Sheriff, the latter from Bellville, are sure of tryouts. Dudley, who hurled amateur ball here for several years, reports with the pitchers and catchers tomorrow, while Sheriff, a student at Kent State university, reports when the school year is over. Sheriff, an infielder, will practice on weekdays in the Braves' wigwam.

Others selected are John Padar, 19-year-old infielder, of Detroit; Gill, outfielder of Akron; Eldon Dice, outfielder, Akron; Palmer, outfielder from Toledo; William Rock, catcher, of Nova; Vance Hammond, pitcher, of London; Wayne Doran, of Nova, and two Akron lefthanders, Mason Parvin and James Gilger.

L. H. Gregory, Portland Oregonian: "Slip Madigan, the ousted St. Mary's coach, has gained 12 pounds since the blow fell . . . that is almost one pound per $1,000 of the $14,000 due on his abrogated contract; this $14,000 being the real reason Slip didn't go to Loyola."

When the Cards gave infielder Jack Sturdy a one-way ticket to Columbus he became so infuriated he almost wrecked the clubhouse.

Add Holy Cross to the schools which will drop the football huddle next season . . . Old Grover Cleveland Alexander advertises in Sporting News: "What have you to offer?"

On April 1 an insurance inspector visited the Columbia (S. C.) ball park . . . He O. K'd the left field bleachers, but condemned the right field patch. . . next day the left field stands collapsed, injuring three.

Gabby Hartnett, who works for a chewing gum manufacturer, has stuck out his chin sure enough this time. . . He is trying his damndest to learn to chew tobacco.

Although no definite schedule has been arranged for the Junior high lads, Robert DeHaven, Simpson coach, said today that he intends to enter his boys in the state Junior high school meet to be held in Sandusky April 20th.

Meanwhile, Johnny Appleseed Coach Robert Cameron has more than 200 boys working out on the basketball court and the cinder track. Plans are on foot to match the two Junior highs in a track meet some time this spring.

All officers of the sanctioned league are requested to attend a meeting of the Mansfield City Bowling association at Fireproofs, 100 W. 10th street, Harry Fireproof, president of the association, said today.

Fireproof stressed the importance of the meeting and requested that officers of each league be present for the Thursday meeting.

Stops Rivals Easily

Crack Mansfield Amateur Is Impressive In Boston Debut.

BOSTON—Beauford Glover, outstanding lightweight of Mansfield, appears to be soaring to the pinnacle in amateur boxing circles following his impressive triumphs in opening round matches of the National A. A. U. tournament here last night.

Winner of the open division championship in the Cleveland Golden Gloves and member of the Lake City team, the dusky Mansfielder is scheduled to unleash his potent attack in a quarter-final setto tonight.

Boxing like a veteran, Glover decided Francis Mullane, crack Detroit battler, in the first session and came back to win a verdict over Romeo Paris of Fitchburg, Mass., in another bout.

Glover opened strongly against Mullane and carried the battle to his opponent, quickly drawing a flow of blood from the sturdy Detroiters nose. Mullane managed to tie up the Mansfield whirlwind and weather the storm to the end of the round.

Mullane rallied in the second heat and got in several good blows, but Glover again took command in the third and surpassed Mullane all the way. The decision was unanimous.

Beauford, who received his training during the past three weeks from "Honeyboy" Jones, widely-known pro, at the Friendly House training quarters, was in front of Paris all the way.

After taking the first two heats with ease, Glover ran into a flurry of right hand punches, but immediately shot over a beautiful right cross that almost floored his opponent.

Joe Maxin, middleweight member of the Cleveland team, won two matches and seems to be on his way to a "grand slam." He already sports the Cleveland title, Chicago championship and New York crown.

Max Schindler, Lorain featherweight, Johnny Lawer, welterweight, and Allen Aubrey, heavyweight, other members of the Cleveland brigade, are still in the running. Schindler and Lawer fought one match each last night.

Boudreau Keys Up Cleveland Club for Race

Indians Are Putting All Their Eggs In Basket Carried By Classy Rookie Shortstop.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Indians are putting all their eggs in a basket carried by Louis Boudreau, Jr., the 22-year-old former University of Illinois star.

The flashy, good-looking shortstop thus will carry one of the heaviest loads ever placed on the arm of a lad starting his first season as a regular in the major leagues.

The players' own nomination of Boudreau as the Indian to "make-or-break" the team springs from the club's long quest for a good short fielder. Lou came up from Buffalo in mid August of last year and in the closing weeks of the season won the unreserved praise of his teammates as the player to fill the hole.

He started fast this spring and fired the club to a high pitch in the opening days of the training grind. A chipped ankle bone put him out for a time, but he was expected back in the starting lineup today.

Loudest in the praise of Boudreau are the club's pitchers. The veterans especially say they have more confidence, pointing to Lou's fast fielding on double-play balls.

Just how much Boudreau will bat in a full major league season remains a question, but Manager Oscar Vitt has indicated he would be worth keeping in the lineup for inspirational and fielding value even if he didn't hit his weight.

Not since the prime days of Outfielder Earl Averill have the Indians fans used the phrase, "As he goes, so go the Indians."

The fans aren't openly mentioning a pennant, but they are saying "the Yanks can't go on forever" and "this Boudreau makes the Indians look like a new ball club."

Neeb had a total of 1901 after bowling 689 with the Fishing Decorators' team, 658 in the doubles and 534 in the singles competition.

He had a chance to strike for a higher spot at the end of his doubles round yesterday when he had an aggregate score of 1347 but he cracked up under the pressure in the singles for a mediocre score.

Edgar Steube of Milwaukee was the first left-hander to enter the field of leaders.

Steube rolled 184, 259 and 242 for 685 which tied for 10th place in the singles. Although he undoubtedly will be replaced this week in the home stretch, his core is remarkable inasmuch as portenders are always at a disadvantage. They must locate their own "grooves." Only two left-handers ever have annexed ABC minor events titles.

Taking the last two falls in less than 6 minutes, Hall disposed of Al Szasz, one of the leading contenders for his title.

Szasz, a Hungarian boy, and a clever grappler, won the first fall of the affair in 12 minutes by a series of head butts and body slams. This unexpected finish apparently irked the champ for he made short work of Szasz in the two remaining heats.

Hall clamped Szasz in the figure 4 body scissors to take the second fall in less than 6 minutes, and returned to repeat the grip and win the decision in less than 45 seconds in the last stanza.

Davey Reynolds, Cedar Rapids, Ia. decided the latest importation, Maurice Letchford of South Africa, in the semi-final match.

Davey, without question the most popular grappler ever to appear here, was lucky last night. Litchford is one of the classicist showmen and also one of the cleverest matmen Reynolds has met in his campaign here.

Letchford took the first fall from Davey in 16 minutes by breaking him over the ropes several times, and finally finished him with a series of slams and body smother.

Davey turned on the heat in the next two stanzas, winning both with his famous kangaroo kicks, the second in 10 minutes and the deciding fall in 4 1/2.

Flash Clifford, Louisville, Ky., and "Indian Ike" Casell of Oklahoma, grappled for 30 minutes and a draw in the show opener. Frank Grashel, Cleveland, officiated in all the bouts.

LEAGUE MEETS THURSDAY

The News-Journal Class B golf league meets at 7:30 Thursday at the Possum Run club house. Team captains, players and sponsors are requested to be present, Maurice Byrnes said today.

Dizzy Dean's Big Surprise This Spring

Holds Browns to Two Hits In Debut Yesterday.

WICHITA, Kans.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean's 1940 pitching debut as brilliant as it was, impressed no one as much as the big right-hander himself.

Making his first exhibition game start yesterday at Fort Smith, Ark., Dean gave the St. Louis Browns no runs and two hits in five innings. He struck out three batters and walked four. Dean's form was the big news of the game as his Chicago Cub teammates spurred to an easy 15 to 2 victory.

After his five-inning turn Dean bounced off the mound, gave his wife a hearty hug and told everybody how good he felt.

"I feel better and was faster than at any time since I joined the Cubs," he said, bubbling with jubilation.

The one-time great pitcher came to the Cubs two years ago this month from St. Louis for $185,000 and three players. Since then he has won a total of 13 games for the Cubs, six last season.

Manager Gabby Hartnett was among those who were not completely carried away by Dean's performance.

"I guess it was all right," commented Gabby, and added he didn't know when Dean would pitch again.

Tobik Pitches Bucks To Home Victory

COLUMBUS, O.—(AP)—The Ohio State university baseball team called upon Andy Tobik, right-hander, to pitch the Buckeyes today to their first home victory of the season with Western Michigan Teachers as the opposition.

The visitors blanked the Bucks, 5 to 0, in the home inaugural yesterday. Frank Overmire, small-sized southpaw, held the Bucks to four hits while his mates collected seven off Clay Blackie, on the mound for Ohio.

Planning a Garden?

To Combat Bugs, Study Their Methods of Attack

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
(By Feature Service Writer)

YOUR first defense in your war on insect pests is to differentiate between their two methods of attack. Some bugs do their damage by chewing, others by piercing a plant's leaves or branches and sucking out vital juices.

Study the injuries. If leaves are being eaten, a stomach poison will kill the insect causing the damage. If the plant is turning yellow and wilting, but there is no evidence of chewing, look for plant lice. They will have to be dusted with poison.

Most common varieties of chewing insects are cabbage worms, potato bugs, cucumber beetle, cutworms, grasshoppers and Mexican bean beetles. Lead arsenate, calcium arsenate or paris green is the dish for them. The Mexican bean beetle is particularly fond of magnesium arsenate and it won't do much damage to tender bean plants.

Plant lice and squash bugs are mixed with one part poison to two parts of water. The dust should be sprinkled over each plant in the morning when the dew is dry. Sprinkle on the ground is good bait for cutworms or grasshoppers.

Squash bugs must be trapped. Place shingles near the plants at night. The bugs will crawl under the boards and may be harvested in the morning and dropped in kerosene.

Tomorrow: Portable garden.

OK'S $40,000 ROADS PROGRAM

County Approves Township Improvement Plans, Will Share in Cost.

County commissioners today had approved a $40,000 township road improvement program in which the county will share the cost of the construction and repair work. The program, which will extend into 16 of the 18 townships in the county, call for improvement of about 29 miles of roads this summer. Cost of the program will be about $4,000 more than last year.

County Engineer Howard C. Sword mapped the projects after conferring with township trustees on their road needs for the year. Only Jefferson and Perry townships in the southern part of the county did not ask for help from the county.

The county will do the grading and drainage work for the townships, actually contributing about $10,000, one-fourth of the cost of the program, Sword said.

A number of the townships are not equipped to do grading and excavating and they agreed to provide the materials and most of the labor if the county takes care of the grading and ditching.

BROTHER DIES

BUCYRUS—Miss Nell Quilter, 528 Prospect street, learned of the death of her brother, Dr. T. E. Quilter, 48, Tiffin, who died Saturday in Muncie, Ind., of injuries received in an automobile accident near Muncie.

Other survivors include the widow, formerly Lillian Weber of Galion, and three children and a brother living in Cleveland.

75 Undergo Kent State Exams In Scholarship Quest

Seventy-five senior high school students yesterday afternoon took the elimination examination for the annual Kent State university scholarship tests to be held May 4. The examination is open to any student in the school, but each student is allowed to take an examination in one subject only.

Tests were given in most major subjects taught at the school.

Winners of the local elimination will compete with other high school students from this section of the state in the Kent State tests in May, and winners in the Kent Competition will compete in the state final later in Columbus.

The senior high examinations were conducted by John C. Stout, examination chairman, and Emma G. Waring. Winners in the elimination are expected to be announced this week.

Clean-Up, Fire Prevention Week Set for May 5-11

JOINT PLANS ANNOUNCED BY CITY GROUPS

Chamber of Commerce, J. A. C. Seek Cooperation of Schools, Merchants.

Observance of National Fire Prevention week and the annual Clean-Up week will run concurrently in Mansfield this year from May 5 to 11, according to announcement of plans today by the sponsors, the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Association of Commerce.

The Fire Prevention program will be sponsored by the senior body while the junior group will supervise the annual Clean-Up week program; John Finefrock, Jr., will head the junior committee on the Clean-Up plans.

School participation will be a major factor in the Fire Prevention observance, according to plans announced by Slough. A speaker from the National Board of Fire Underwriters will make several addresses in the city before high school assemblies, and there will be a poster contest in all grades of elementary and junior and senior high schools. Winners will be entered in national contests.

There will be school fire drills during the week and school children will distribute to homes 5,000 questionnaires which are to be filled out and returned to room teachers. This part of the program will be done entirely by school children, in co-operation with their parents.

Mercantile houses in the city will be asked to take part in the observance of the week by displaying posters in their windows and on lamp posts throughout the downtown district, and by having organization meetings with speakers. The city fire department will make an inspection of all business places during the week.

Finefrock said the Junior Association had not completed their plans for clean-up week as yet, but that the city would make its regular collection of rubbish by districts during the week, and that its committee hoped to be able to arrange a house-to-house reminder to occupants to have their rubbish ready for collection when city trucks call.

Why Let Stomach Ulcer Pains Starve You?

A great specialist found that by using bismuth to coat the stomach lining on the sensitive parts, thus preventing the irritating action of digestive secretions and foods, enables many sufferers of acid stomach ulcer pains to eat a hearty meal—even steak and corn beef and cabbage—without severe after-pains. Udgla Tablets contain bismuth and other valuable ingredients in a balanced formula. They have been praised by thousands. Try a 25c box of Udgla for relief of ulcer and stomach pains, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, burning sensation, bloating and other conditions caused by excess acid. FIELD DAY

200 Grange Members Plan June Meet at Bucyrus.

BUCYRUS—Plans for a field day at the county fairgrounds, Saturday June 8 were started at the meeting of the county granges held in Tiro school Friday night, when 200 grange members from nine granges were in attendance.

Six visiting Grangers from Richland county were present and spoke briefly during the program.

In an address delivered by T. G. Wagner, a proposal was made designed to promote a larger Crawford county museum. Wagner proposed to enlarge on the present collection which is now housed on the second floor of the Bucyrus public library. Masters of the nine subordinate granges were asked to promote the idea in their organizations.

Noon Ceremony United Bucyrus Couple In Church

BUCYRUS—In a quiet ceremony read at noon Sunday in First United Brethren church, Miss Mary Dunlap, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunlap, 416 South Sandusky avenue became the bride of Edmond Tompkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tompkins, 415 East Charles street. The Rev. Walter Purdy was the officiating pastor. Miss Phyllis Kemery and James Light attended the couple.

The wedding party was entertained at dinner at the Harding hotel in Marion following the ceremony and Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins left immediately after for a short motor trip through southern Ohio. They will make their home in a newly furnished apartment at the Tompkins residence.

Mrs. Tompkins has been employed as a saleslady at the Morris store. Mr. Tompkins is the owner and operator of the Sinclair service station, at Sandusky and Charles street.

DENIES CHARGE

Accused Wife-Slayer Case To Reach Jury Today.

STUEBENVILLE — (AP) — The first degree murder case of James Starr, 23, mill worker accused of slaying his 20-year-old wife, Camilla, was expected to reach a jury of eight men and four women late today.

Starr, testifying in his own defense, denied the state's charge that he fatally wounded his wife with a knife last Sept. 10 as she walked along the street carrying their seven-month-old daughter. Starr claimed he was at home in bed for an hour before the murder.

RIVERS UP AGAIN

Central New York Streams Fed by Heavy Rains, Snow.

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — (AP) — Central New York's rivers and creeks, fed by heavy rains and melting snow, rose near record heights today for the third time in nine days.

Thousands of acres of lowlands had already been inundated by the new rise and emergency crews battled to keep raging streams from sweeping into cities and villages.

In Syracuse, scores of families in a 20-block southside area were trapped in their homes during the night for the third time in nine days as Onondaga creek rose two and a half feet in eight hours.

HOGS KILLED AS TRUCK LOSES WHEEL; 3 CRASHES REPORTED

Thirteen hogs were killed and other livestock injured in a truck accident at 9:30 p. m. yesterday on route 98, near Plymouth. The driver of the truck suffered minor injuries.

The hogs were being hauled in a double-decker truck, driven by Julius Poliska, 33, of Elyria, and were killed when a rear wheel came off, causing the body to drop to the highway and drag along the road, highway patrolmen reported.

The hogs, riding in the lower part of the truck, were killed when the top deck, loaded with calves, caved in on them.

Other livestock suffered broken legs in the fall. Those not injured broke out of the truck and roamed over the highway and nearby fields. They were rounded up by passing motorists and nearby farmers.

Poliska was treated by a Plymouth physician for a possible fracture of the right knee.

In another accident Mrs. Albert Neill, 35, of Chagrin Falls, suffered minor head lacerations and a sprained shoulder when the car driven by her husband, ran off the road on route 42, three miles northeast of Mansfield at 2:25 p. m. yesterday, as he attempted to pass another car. Neill was not injured.

Clayton Shaffer, 39, of Akron, escaped injuries at 10:30 p. m. yesterday when the freight truck he was driving, turned over on its side at the foot of Ashland hill near Madison school, according to highway patrolmen.

The truck carried a five-ton load of miscellaneous freight.

SUBMIT LEVY

Cleveland School Board Seeks Tax To Continue Operations.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — In an effort to continue school operations at the present level and increase to 100 per cent salaries of certain employees, the Cleveland board of education has voted to submit a one-mill special levy at the May 14 primary.

School employees other than teachers now receive 96 per cent of full salaries. The levy, to be assessed on 1941 and 1942 tax duplicates, would raise $1,208,000 annually.

REPORTS ROBBERY, BEATING

Glenn Barger, Trimble road, was treated at General hospital last night after he had been beaten and robbed in a holdup on North Main street shortly after 10, near the county garage, according to police reports. Barger told police three colored men attacked him and took his pocketbook containing $4.60.

They contended that the statute operated to the benefit of the property owner who, fraudulently or otherwise, did not return his property for taxation, thereby escaping taxes, and to the disadvantage of honest, tax-paying property owner.

Atty. Luther Day, Cleveland, leading the opposing argument.

SUPREME COURT STUDIES THREE TAX CASE SUITS

Collection of Millions Hinges on Decision in Black Case, Two Others.

On the decision of the Ohio Supreme court in three personal tax suits, one involving the estate of the late Frank B. Black of Mansfield, today rested the collection of a sum estimated as millions of dollars of unpaid taxes in Ohio for the period from 1926 to 1931.

The supreme court took the cases under advisement after hearing arguments on the appeals this morning at Columbus.

If the court holds that a statute which made certain property immune to tax assessments during the five-year period is unconstitutional, the state will be cleared for the assessment and collections of millions back taxes throughout Ohio.

In the Black case, attorneys for the plaintiff contended that only $30,000 to $40,000 in taxable personal property had been listed during the five years while maintaining that the listings should have totaled as much as $1,700,000.

It was estimated that more than 11 billion dollars in personal property, mostly intangibles, on which taxes would approximate $1,792,000,000, was not listed for taxation during the five-year period because of the state immunity clause.

The court will decide if the estates are entitled to certificates of immunity against tax assessments for the period, or if county auditors shall assess the taxes and ask the treasurers to collect them.

The cases were taken to the high court after the state board of tax appeals refused to grant immunity certificates.

In the case involving the Black estate, started about a year ago by Michael Hallabrin of Mansfield as a taxpayer, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe had completed an audit of the intangible assets of the estate for the five years and was preparing to make assessments when the supreme court issued a temporary stay of execution.

The Fifth district court of appeals last October ordered the audit and the assessments.

The other two appeals heard today by the supreme court were from Cleveland, one by R. L. Ireland, Jr., as executor, and the other by the Cleveland Trust company as trustee of the estate of the late Harry Coulby, steel magnate.

Auditor Wolfe, his counsel, Prosecutor G. W. Marriott, Atty. W. M. Weldon, representing the Black estate, and Atty. Joseph A. Bayer, attorney for Hallabrin, were in Columbus today for the hearings.

Upholding the state tax department's refusal to grant immunity certificates, Audrey Wendt, assistant attorney general, and Atty. Ian B. Hart of Canton, one of Hallabrin's attorneys, argued that the immunity provision is unconstitutional because it makes an illegal classification of taxpayers and because it was retroactive, by applying to taxes due and unpaid in past years.

They contended that the statute operated to the benefit of the property owner who, fraudulently or otherwise, did not return his property for taxation, thereby escaping taxes, and to the disadvantage of honest, tax-paying property owner.

Atty. Luther Day, Cleveland, leading the opposing argument.

PUMPKIN PIE CAUSES CRASH

Driver Tries To Get Skirt From Dessert, Puts Car In Ditch

CINCINNATI — (AP) — A freshly baked pumpkin pie was the indirect cause of an accident here in which an automobile overturned in a ditch injuring four women slightly.

Mrs. Mattie Thomas, 56, was driving to a club meeting with three other women yesterday when she noticed that the edge of Mrs. Ethel Stewart's dress was in the pie.

As she reached for the pie, the car lost control of her car which left the road and overturned in a ditch.

FIVE HURT

Students Injured En Route to Visit Mansfield Reformatory.

Five automobiles tangled in a collision on U. S. 30 North near Bucyrus shortly before noon today slightly injuring five North Baltimore high school students, members of a social science class en route to visit the Mansfield Reformatory.

Only one of the students, Betty Chapman, was hurt seriously enough to receive hospital care at Bucyrus. She was released after treatment for bruises. The other students were given physician's care at a farmhouse near the scene of the crash.

The accident occurred when the driver of one of the seven cars carrying 40 students attempted to pass the car in front of him and was forced back into the line of traffic. His automobile was struck from the rear. Three of the cars were badly damaged.

RAIL STORAGE YARDS JAMMED

Late Opening of Lake Erie Fills Ports With Coal.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Late opening of the Lake Erie navigation season has jammed rail storage yards with coal in most ports.

One and coal exchange statistics disclosed there are 36,256 cars of coal awaiting dumping into lake ships, still inactive due to ice conditions. In addition, 8,437 loaded cars rest on country sidings between mines and ports.

The bituminous "back-up" probably has reached its peak, shippers said, since ships here are joining the Toledo-Detroit movement daily and cargoes soon will start from other ports.

contended that the statute is constitutional, that it made no illegal classification, and that it was not retroactive in its operation. The former tax law, he asserted, was "unfair and confiscatory" and that "it was common knowledge that many taxpayers did not pay" when it was in effect.

GRANT PAROLES TO 125 INMATES

Richland County Prisoner Among Reformatory Group To Be Released.

The Ohio Pardon and Parole commission today granted paroles to 125 inmates of the Mansfield reformatory, including Victor Le Roy Payne, serving a term from Richland county for operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent.

Payne, who will be released next Sept. 2, was sentenced May 20, 1939, to a one-to-20-year term.

The parole commission continued until April 1941, the hearing on a parole for John Dietch, 20, of Columbus, serving a term for kidnapping an Ohio Wesleyan university coed and her companion two years ago.

Dietch was sentenced from Delaware after he was convicted of holding up Clara Mac Kerr and Charles Hopkins, Ohio Wesleyan students, in April, 1937, and then driving to Marion where the young man was ordered to leave the car. Miss Kerr was driven back to Delaware unharmed by Dietch.

SHIPS IN ZONE

At Least Two American Vessels In Scandinavian Waters.

NEW YORK — (AP) — At least two American ships are in the Scandinavian war zone. They are the new $2,000,000 Flying Fish, built by the U. S. maritime commission for the Moore-McCormack line, now at Bergen on her maiden voyage, and the same company's Mormas sea, a 4,955-ton freighter, at Trondheim.

FREMONTERS HURT

FREMONT — (AP) — Mathias Gress, 52, was injured fatally and Jack Hoffman, 23, was hurt seriously when an automobile left state route 53 and went into a ditch, 10 miles north of Fremont, early today. Both resided in Fremont.

DOCTORS WARN FOLKS WHO ARE CONSTIPATED

IT IS SAID constipation causes many human discomforts—headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness being but a few. BUT DON'T WORRY—

For years a noted Ohio Doctor, Dr. F. M. Edwards, successfully treated scores of patients for constipation with his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now sold by druggists everywhere.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful! They not only gently yet thoroughly cleanse the bowels but ALSO assist liver bile flow to help digest fatty foods. Test their goodness TONIGHT without fail! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢.

reinforce Norwegian resistance against the German invasion. Even before the startling news of a German invasion of Denmark and Norway were received here, authorities strongly affirmed that Scandinavia could rely on Allied assistance in case of German attack.

A British naval engagement with German sea forces—reportedly comprising a fleet of 100 or upwards transports, auxiliaries and warships—apparently moving in the Kattegat and Skagerrak was widely anticipated.

British naval forces are already in that area. Yesterday British submarines in the Skagerrak sank three, possibly four, German ships including a troop transport. A German submarine was also reported sunk.

The size of the British naval force actually in the Skagerrak was not known. However, a substantial concentration of British warships is known to be operating up and down the Norwegian coast, particularly in the three areas where mine fields were sown early yesterday.

There was an air raid last night on the British fleet base of Scapa Flow. British reports said that two and possibly three German planes were shot down in the raid and that no units of the fleet were hit.

French Chiefs Confer on Northern Crisis.

PARIS (AP)—French Premier Paul Reynaud conferred with Defense Minister Edouard Daladier today on the Scandinavian crisis.

Chiefs of the French armed forces went to the Elysee palace for a meeting of the council of ministers.

The ministerial council meeting ended at 11 a. m. No communique was issued. However, France promised today to aid Norway against Germany with all means at the French government's disposal.

Assurances to this effect were given formally to the Norwegian minister to Paris in accordance with a joint Anglo-French decision to go to the aid of Norway following a Norwegian plea for help.

Premier Paul Reynaud personally gave the assurance to the Norwegian envoy.

Meanwhile, President Albert LeBrun presided at a meeting of the French war committee held just before the decision was announced. It was expected that Reynaud, meanwhile, would request a postponement of the senate's scheduled debate on war affairs.

Reynaud conferred with Defense Minister Daladier and chiefs of the French armed forces went to the Elysee palace for a meeting of the French council of ministers.

Later a communique was issued decreeing stabilization of prices for a three-month period and instituting the death penalty for "acts of demoralization" against the army or nation and increasing penalties for spreading Communist propaganda.

Copenhagen Quiet, Washington Hears.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department's first official information from Copenhagen today confirmed that the Danish capital was controlled by German soldiers. The dispatch added that the city was quiet.

The department added that the American minister in Copenhagen, Ray Atherton, had been requested by the British minister to assume charge of British interests there. The department authorized him at once to do so.

Official American advices from Oslo, Norway, reported that squadrons of German planes had flown over the city for two hours and that the streets were filled with people leaving the city.

A report from Raymond E. Cox, first secretary of the U. S. legation, stated that Norwegian anti-aircraft batteries had been active, but that the legation knew of no aerial bombings by the Nazi invaders.

Oslo Captured by German Invaders

Germany Claims Full Control of Both
Norway and Denmark in Fast
Move by Air, Land, Sea.

which propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels asserted that the Nazis possessed documents proving that the British-French Allies had planned to invade Scandinavia within a few days.

The civilian population of Oslo, which was under an air raid alarm before dawn and which was reported in Paris dispatches to have been bombed, was ordered to leave the city.

The first intimation that the war had at last spread to Scandinavia came late last night when four warships, later identified as German, attempted to force an entrance to Oslo Fjord, gateway to the Norwegian capital, only to be repulsed by shore batteries.

The actual invasion of Norway began at about 3 a. m. (9 p. m. Monday EST), according to the Oslo radio, which said that Ger-

Hitler Scores Major Gain In Scandinavian Invasion

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN—Chancellor Hitler today seized Norway and Denmark as a counter-stroke to what the Nazis charged was "abolition of neutrality" by the Allies.

The smashing German blow automatically safeguards the reich's right flank while it cuts in half the distance between England and the German military machine, particularly in the air and under-sea branches of war.

Thus, it can be estimated that Hitler's long-threatened great and final German "march to victory" is considerably nearer.

It was estimated that two German army corps were taking control of Denmark and Norway more or less without serious resistance. Germans emphasized that Sweden is not involved in the Nazi invasion.

For eight full hours an air-tight lid on telephones, radio and cables isolated the reich from the world until 11:15 a. m. (4:15 a. m. EST) today when reports of which all were aware in Berlin since Saturday, were permitted to pass through to the rest of the world.

Dutch and Belgian circles in the German capital were assured they had nothing to worry about in connection with the German military stroke.

Anticipating the next move of the Allies in the war's chess game, Chancellor Hitler and the German general staff quietly and systematically prepared for the Scandinavian expedition.

Success in the venture—a great probability—swings the balance of victory chances definitely on the side of Germany since it definitely hamstringing England, especially from the naval point of view.

High government quarters, commenting on the new state of war, said:

"The Allies lost the war of nerves when they invaded Norwegian territorial waters and gave us a blank check to use every means to win.

"We would have been fools not to have taken the opportunity so freely offered. In a few days the Allies themselves would have been there to put the pistol to our head."

After an all night watch, the expected summons came to foreign correspondents to attend a special press conference in the foreign office, at which the coup was described.

In several official statements the German government formally charged that the British and French had opened warfare at sea "against the neutral world," and "forced Germany to move into Norway and Denmark in order to protect" the northern countries against Allied aggression.

Although Norway has declared a technical state of war against Germany, it was emphasized in Berlin the German forces are making every effort to respect the domestic rights and privileges of both northern countries.

Sporadic fighting was understood to have been encountered by the Germans in marching on Norway.

On the other hand, the German government officially announced the invasion of Denmark was carried out without incident with Copenhagen quietly accepting the situation.

Danish authorities assured the Germans of the fullest and most loyal co-operation.

The Copenhagen radio, traffic and newspapers were functioning normally. Occupation of Jutland was completed. German troops moved on to Aalborg. Danish city in the north.

In Berlin the German army move was taken with complete outer calm.

Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop appeared at his office dressed in military uniform. He combat zone to include the waters around the north Capes.

Decision on the steps the government would take awaited the return of President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull to the capital.

The president, awakened in the middle of the night at Hyde Park, N. Y., prepared to return quickly to the White House. Hull, taking a rest at Atlantic City, also arranged to get back to his desk at once.

The first official word of the reich's swift hammer blows on the Scandinavian flank reached the capital shortly after midnight from Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, U. S. minister to Norway.

Despite the almost complete disruption of communications with the North Cape countries, Mrs. Harriman managed to get her message out by telephoning it to Fred Sterling, American minister to Stockholm.

She reported that the British and French ministers at Oslo had requested the American legation there to take over the interests of their nations in Norway whenever evacuation was necessary.

The Norwegian minister to the United States, Wilhke Morgenstjerne, spent some time at the state department during the night. Henrik De Kauffman, the Danish minister, was on a vacation in Charleston, S. C., when the Germans entered Denmark. He started hurriedly back to the capital.

The sudden plight of two Scandinavian neighbors shocked the Swedish minister, W. Bostrom, whose own country has been thrust into a position of grave peril by the developments.

"How terrible, how terrible," he exclaimed.

To requests for formal comment, he answered sadly:

"What is there to say?"

The problem of evacuating American nationals from the war-torn Scandinavian countries assumed considerable proportions, in view of the uncertainty of shipping operations in a heavily mined and warship-patrolled zone. State department records list 1067 American citizens in Norway, 552 in Denmark and 1,752 in Sweden.

warfare, England was increasingly under flagrant violations of international law and undertook warlike actions on the sea; in the air and also in the territorial waters of the sovereign countries, Denmark and Norway.

"Germany foresaw such a development since the beginning of the war.

"Through the interior and exterior policies Germany knew how to prevent the British attempt of a hunger blockade against the German people."

A proclamation issued by Generals Von Calkenhorst and Kaupisch, in command of Scandinavian operations, was broadcast to the Norwegian and Danish peoples.

Although a portion of the military statement reviewed developments in a manner similar to the memorandum, it sought also to reassure the people of the invaded countries.

"It is not the intention of the German government to secure bases for the fight against England, but Germany is exclusively aiming to prevent Scandinavia from becoming a battlefield for British war extension plans," the proclamation said.

DROPS CHARGES AGAINST TRIO

Butler Baker Withdraws His Assault Complaint Against 3 School Officials.

Assault and battery charges against three Butler village school officials who had been accused of assaulting L. L. Miller, Butler baker, were dropped yesterday, shortly before the cases were to be tried before Mayor Russell Strong of Butler.

Miller, who withdrew the charges yesterday afternoon, said "we have everything worked out all right and there won't be any hearing." He refused to comment further.

The cases were scheduled for trial last night. Named in the charges were Supt. Willard Weekley of Butler schools, Robert Burgett, high school coach, and Walter Wareham, member of the board of education.

In a statement today to The News-Journal, Burgett admitted striking Miller the night of March 27, but he said he did it in self-defense after Miller came to Wareham's home and started an argument.

Supt. Weekley and Burgett were at Wareham's home when Miller went there to arrange a "hearing" to "straighten out" reports that Miller had been circulating malicious rumors about the school men.

Mansfield News-Journal
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 9, 1940.

The Forgotten Man is seldom forgotten by candidates.

Congress doesn't seem to regard economy as even a noble experiment that might be worth trying.

Doctors are lengthening human life while dictators are shortening it, and it's hard to say yet which will win.

Charles Kettering suggests as a present-day need "an honest confession of ignorance"—but surely there is some more practical way out.

Norway and Denmark Invaded

SPREAD of the European war to the Scandinavian countries could scarcely have come as a surprise to those who have been even casual observers of what has been going on in that part of the world in recent months, and particularly within the past few days, in which it has become apparent that the Allies were intensifying their efforts to make the blockade of Germany much more effective.

Norway and Denmark, as small neutral nations, were in the path of the storm and are being as ruthlessly dealt with as was Belgium at the start of the World war in 1914.

Invasion by the German army is on the pretext of taking these countries "under protection" to prevent a possible hostile attack by the Allies, but the real purpose of the onslaught is obviously to gain Nazi domination over the Scandinavian nations and to hereafter dictate their course, as was done by Russia in Finland.

For many months little Norway and Denmark had been struggling earnestly to maintain a position of neutrality, even to the extent of not going to the aid of neighboring Finland in its time of need, but in their key position to block entrance to the Baltic sea, their plight has seemed hopeless from the start and their fate awaits final outcome of the war now being waged.

Norway has declared war on Germany, as a result of the invasion, but Denmark has submitted, under protest, probably hopeful of thus escaping the ravages of aggressive warfare, as neither of these countries has military strength sufficient to defend itself against the hordes of Hitler.

Next step is up to the Allies, with the time at hand for a showing of intentions as to protection of the Scandinavian countries and display of strength sufficient to conquer Germany on land, sea and in the air.

As viewed from the United States, and from official Washington, conditions in Europe are becoming increasingly critical.

Those Worried Filipinos

PRESIDENT MANUEL QUEZON, who is coming to the United States soon, plans to make a special appeal for authority to make commercial treaties for the Philippines. And he still insists that full independence in 1946, as scheduled, is the proper course.

But the Philippine Civic League is urging a re-examination and a possible revision of the Independence Act. And it is believed that what President Quezon himself really wants is "economic equality with the United States" combined with American guarantees for Philippine independence.

Most Americans have seemed content to let the islands go, in spite of their rich resources and their desirability according to old, imperialist standards. The United States has lost its yearning for empire and would prefer to see the two countries co-operating as free and equal friends.

But that status doesn't seem so possible since Japan started her imperialist spree. It appears more likely that Japan would immediately grab the islands and use them as stepping stones to further conquest.

Violators Who 'Know Better'

FEW more discouraging experiences are encountered in connection with traffic law enforcement than those which involve derelictions of persons who "know better" but who deliberately and repeatedly violate traffic regulations, apparently on the assumption that these regulations are intended for ordinary people.

An item in yesterday's paper revealed an incident of this sort, in which a local motorist ignored eleven tickets placed on his car for parking violations, until summoned to appear and make settlement of the customary $1 per offense.

This occurrence also quite convincingly discloses that the one-time custom of "fixing" traffic tickets for personal or political friends is no longer in vogue—which is a good thing.

White Garden Designer Explains

MOST gardeners enjoy varied color in their flowers and shrubs. Others, more formal, carry out special color schemes, possibly changing from year to year. But a white garden, designed to be enjoyed at twilight or after dark, sounds original. Here's how it came about.

"Our garden stresses white because we are working downtown all day and so enjoy it most in the evening," explain the makers of this garden. "Colored flowers like red, pink, yellow or blue fade out in the darkness, but white seems to get more luminous in the dusk. From the terrace or upstairs porch, it is beautiful when the garden is drenched with moonlight. And the perfume is intensified at night too."

This white garden has blossoms of one kind or another throughout the season, beginning with daisies in May and ending with chrysanthemums in the fall.

A white garden may seem monotonous to people who enjoy their flowers in the daytime as well as at night, but the fact that such a garden could be planned and successfully carried out suggests endless possibilities for people who enjoy working out garden designs and solving special garden problems.

Gadget Improves Marksmanship

THE WAR has been growing more and more aerial. And as the air bombing proceeds, interest centers more and more on a certain little gadget about the size of a baby's hand that has been developed for our warplane service and is used exclusively by it. It is an "airplane sight" of miraculous accuracy, said to be much better than any similar device possessed by other nations.

A story going around lately says that a pilot using this sight on a swift plane, can drop a bomb on a spot the size of a man's hat, from a height of three miles. Such accuracy is almost inconceivable.

Britain, or any other belligerent, might be willing to give a battleship or two for that device. But nobody can buy it. And to protect the secret, whenever a war plane carrying one of the magic sights comes down, it is taken apart and the parts are distributed among the flyers so that no unauthorized person could reassemble them for use.

Man About
Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It has been years since the Black Spider variety of murder play has been successful on Broadway, and yet hardly a month passes that some supposedly smart producer doesn't come to premiere with another such drama that barely gets its head across the footlights before the ax-men chop it off.

These losses run into thousands of dollars and frequently they are followed by guest pieces in the newspapers, written by the producers and playwrights themselves, which submit that the critics are ignorantly incompetent and sometimes perverts at that.

It seems to me the greatest fault of the producers lies in their sense of selectivity. In an era torn by war, political crisis and economic upheaval, who wants to be reminded that tomorrow we may die? People want to laugh. They need to be taught how to relax. There is reality enough in the newspaper headlines to remind them to weep.

I WALKED into a 44th street theater the other night for the opening of a play which, up till three o'clock on the afternoon of its opening day, had cost its backers exactly $31,000. This money was already down a rat hole. Unless the play caught on, unless the public found it acceptable, all the weeks of terrifying (to those who needed the jobs) and expensive and exhaustive work would be absolutely for nothing.

By the end of the second act all but two of the critics had departed. Next morning the death notices were recorded in clear-cut statements by the critics. The play ran through six performances, but actually it was as dead as the speak-easy era long before the first act curtain fell on the first performance.

You hear many people mention Hellzapoppin and wonder why it continues to play to packed audiences. It is sneered at because it is based on prat-falls and low comedy that tickled grandpa 40 years ago. I hadn't thought of it until now, but Hellzapoppin begins to make sense. It makes people laugh. It makes people get out of their seats and dance in the aisles. They come out into the streets after 11 o'clock in the evening with tears running down their cheeks, and if the tears quickly freeze on their faces, that is of no concern to the theater-goers themselves. They have plenty of warmth inside. The warmth that comes from the old time laughter that begins at the belt and shakes them right down to their toes.

WHAT are the plays that have been successful in New York this season? Skylark, which is a light, sentimental comedy; The Man Who Came to Dinner, an out-and-out farce; The Male Animal, a screw-ball college comedy; Life With Father, the old family album with modern wisecracks; The Philadelphia Story, sophisticated comedy; and the musicals, the laughing, dancing, melodious reviews.

There are other successes, but with one or two isolated exceptions, they all must be predicated on the theory that laughter makes dollars.

That Key Largo achieved a limited success on Broadway may be attributed to the prestige of the Playwrights company, which produced it; to Maxwell Anderson, who wrote it, and to Paul Muni, who came on from Hollywood in a return to the theater for that particular play and gave a fine performance. Key Largo, actually, was sordid and dreary with the eternal dreariness of the Spanish civil war and people who saw it, though they had praise for Muni, spoke of him through faces that were melancholy and drawn.

Health

"Courageous Fear"
In Fighting Cancer.

—By DR. CLENDENING

The first and most important element in the fight against cancer is the progress and improvement in technical methods of care. The second great weapon is research. The third is education of the public. As the first two claim new victories, which they are every year doing, education becomes more and more important, because the cure of cancer is essentially the individual's responsibility.

It is a personal problem. It cannot be checked or controlled by public health vigilance. It does not depend upon any environmental factor, such as the purity of water, or uncontaminated food, or quarantine of affected individuals, which are weapons in other diseases and are under the management of the public health department.

The greatest element in the good result that we are having in cancer is what is called "courageous fear." "Courageous fear" consists in the determination to find out about suspicious symptoms early, the nerve to face the facts and the willingness to submit to treatment that will eliminate the danger.

How It Is Helped.

Cancer control is helped by education through (1) public talks, magazine and newspaper articles, (2) radio talks, and (3) the use of libraries, leading to early treatment by (1) surgery, (2) radium and (3) x-ray, the only approved treatments.

The new low temperature treatment is a possible adjunct which has not been thoroughly evaluated as yet. But we can say definitely that it controls intractable pain in late stages.

A most important part of the educational campaign is to insist that these methods are the only ones which up to the present have been found to have any value. It cannot be too emphatically insisted that the use of serum of any kind yet discovered, is just as dangerous as the cancer itself. This goes for all other forms of treatments—pastes, caustics, etc. Their use wastes the precious time when real treatment could be employed.

The Watchword.

Early diagnosis, early consultation about suspicious matters, is the watchword of successful treatment. It is here, particularly, that the individual must be willing to aid.

The commonest forms of curable cancer can be easily recognized by the person who has them. These are cancer of the skin and of the breast.

In early stages skin cancer has been proved to be curable in 95 per cent of cases (when taken early). When taken late, it is curable in only 30 per cent of cases. Cancer of the breast is curable early in 75 per cent of cases and in only 20 per cent of cases when allowed to drift.

Consult your doctor at once about any sore on the mouth, lip, or tongue that does not heal up in 10 days or two weeks; about persistent white areas on the tongue, especially in the case of smokers; any lump, lack of symmetry, persistent soreness of the breast or colored discharge from the nipple; any irregular bleeding at any time of life; any lump or sore on the skin that does not heal in ten days or two weeks; any mole or wart on the skin which develops tenderness; changes in its texture or begins to grow and particularly in elderly people of sandy complexion; any persistent dry scaly spots on the hands or face which bleed when they are picked and do not heal readily.

Timely Editorial

Meaning of "Free Press."

We hope and believe that thoughtful Clevelanders realize what a free press means and what it does not. Most emphatically it is not under any obligation to give every enthusiast, however irresponsible, unlimited space and opportunity to promote his pet ideas. The function of the editor is to edit. This necessarily entails selection. His duty and his right is to publish, within the limit of the physical resources at his disposal, whatever he deems the most significant and the most interesting of the enormous mass of material which comes before him.

We would be the last to suggest that any editor, anywhere, has ever been infallible in his judgment or always unerring in his taste and discrimination. Newspapers are produced by human beings who make their share of mistakes.

If they are really doing a good job they will welcome criticism and suggestion, for such is the way of improvement. But they have a right to expect their public to remember that, after all, the editor is the editor. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WASHINGTON
Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—One of the great military lessons already taught by the European war is the crucial importance of air power. It is a lesson, however, that seems to be lost on certain U. S. navy master minds.

Several weeks ago The Washington Merry-Go-Round revealed how, while congress was voting tens of millions of dollars for new naval aircraft and personnel, navy brass hats were preparing to retire eight of the service's top flyers because they are not Annapolis graduates. Current events have added another example of this underlying antipathy, toward the air force on the part of high-placed seadogs.

Today, in the vast and strategically vital Hawaiian area of the Pacific, the great battle fleet of the U. S. is engaged in its most important war maneuver since the World war. Many new ships, aircraft carriers, planes, are being tested on the basis of lessons gained from the European conflict.

So important are the games that Secretary Charles Edison is personally attending them. But the No. 2 flying officer of the Navy, Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, commander of the Aircraft's Scouting Force, is not.

A large part of Admiral Cook's command, carriers and planes, are engaged in the crucial maneuvers, but he is far away on the other side of the ocean. A few days ago, accompanied by his entire staff, he steamed out of San Diego aboard his flagship, the Cruiser Memphis, on a leisurely inspection cruise that will take him through the Panama Canal, the Caribbean and on up to Norfolk, Va., and Washington.

Unused Flag-Plane.

WHY he, his entire staff, and his flagship should be absent from the important Pacific battle tests is a mystery. Equally unexplained was the action last year of Admiral Claude C. Bloch, then commander-in-chief of the fleet, in refusing to allow Cook to use a 4-motor plane on which $80,000 taxpayers' money had been spent to fit it up as Cook's flag-plane.

The ship, one of the few of its type in the navy, was equipped with bunks, galley, water tanks, desks, carpets and other furnishings to accommodate Cook and his staff. Its purpose was to eliminate the heavy cost of using a large cruiser to transport Cook and his staff, also to free the cruiser for other missions.

But Bloch, who has never been up in the air and who once refused to allow seaplane squadrons to make test flights across the country from the Pacific to the Atlantic, hit the ceiling when the plane arrived at San Diego. He ordered Cook not to use it, and for six months it remained idle in a hangar. It was still there when Cook sailed on the Memphis.

Note—Cook is one of five "flying admirals" who draw between $3,000 and $4,000 a year flying pay but are not allowed to take up or land a ship. When they fly they are always accompanied by a special pilot assigned to them.

Heart Breaker.

THE well-laid plans of Finnish Minister Hjalmar Procopé to outwit the press at his wedding misfired, but the tall, handsome diplomat did manage to inject some privacy into the affair—much to the vocal annoyance of the photographers.

The day of the wedding, Procopé left strict orders with his staff to stall the press until a half hour after the ceremony, by which time he and his British bride would be well on their way out of town. The staff obeyed orders, but Procopé overlooked one leak. An employee in the county clerk's office at Fairfax, Va., where the marriage license was secured, also is the local correspondent of a Washington paper.

Result was that when Procopé and his bride-to-be arrived at the Fairfax home of State Department Counselor R. Walton Moore for the big event, they were met by a grinning battery of reporters and lensmen.

Procopé was much put out, though he finally agreed to "a few shots." But when a "kiss

OF HEARTS AND SONG + + +

CHAPTER XI

Elaine stood for a long moment before the door, a faraway look in her eyes, and then ran quickly across the room to the front window and drew up the shade. Eric had just flagged a taxi and as she watched it glide smoothly to the curb a lump settled in her throat. Eric had not failed her! She watched him climb into the cab and as it drew away from the curb she knocked her knuckles on the window sill. Softly, very softly she repeated his words: "For luck!"

But deep down inside her heart she knew that the gesture was a futile one. Mrs. Reardon had wanted her as a daughter-in-law and no incantations would alter this decision. She would disinherit Eric, that was as certain as the rising sun, and Elaine wondered if she should have consented to marry him. With a troubled sigh she walked slowly back to the couch. Did all girls have this same problem to face when they fell in love with a man? Was it right for any girl to take a son away from his mother against the mother's wishes?

The room seemed to have become larger since his departure and she walked restlessly about, trying to get the whole matter straight in her mind. Eric would be giving up a lot to marry her, but then, he was aware of this and had still made his decision. And somehow she was instinctively certain that their marriage would prove beneficial to him. Eric had never had any real problems to face in his life. Rich, sheltered by a strong-willed mother, he had simply gone through the motions of living, growing more and more dependent, weaker in character as the years passed by. Providing for her would teach him a few things, harden him, developed his long neglected sense of independence, make a man of him instead of just a mother's boy.

A knock on the door drove these thoughts from her mind and Elaine rushed across the room to answer it, glad for the interruption. What she most needed right now was companionship and even a total stranger would give her the time she needed to straighten out her emotions.

It was a light, swarthy Italian woman who stood before the door. "Hallo," she greeted cheerfully. "I'm da landlady. I come upstairs choost to letta you know I'm glad you come. I tella that to all de peoples what live in da house. I'm Momma Gambino."

"Oh, you're the mother of the little baby I saw this afternoon," Elaine said, warming to the friendliness of her smile. "Would you care to come in?"

"I gotta go back downstairs," Momma Gambino told her, shaking her head. "The little bambino, he's all alone. He's gonna turn out no good, thata one. All the time he want to be played with. When he grows up I bet he's gonna be a ladies' man. But sometime you come down to see me, ha?"

Elaine promised that she would and was sorry when, with another of her flashing smiles, Momma Gambino bid her good night. Once again she was alone. . . . Remembering suddenly that she still had her unpacking to do she walked into the bedroom and turned on the light. As she opened her suitcase she became aware of how much she missed Clara and Betty. She signed and supposed that they were always the way; when you were near people you simply took them for granted; it wasn't until you had been separated from them that you realized just how much they meant to you.

As she busily arranged her dresses on the hangers in the closet she wondered what had made her flare up when Eric began talking with her. Never before in her life had she given vent to her feelings in such a way. It was almost as though a different person had taken possession of her brain, driving her on to say things she herself would never have considered saying. She recalled the story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde and wondered if it were true that underneath the thin veneer of civilization which almost every one possesses there lies concealed a wilder, more bestial nature.

She heard the door to the apartment open and close, but before she could drop the silken underthings she was carrying to the bureau drawer Jane came into the bedroom, her arms filled with brown-paper bags.

"How did you make out?" Jane queried, placing the bags on the bed. "Did you find the Blanchard store all right?"

Elaine smiled as she recalled her decision concerning that. "I'm not going to try them. I really don't think Mr. Blanchard has a job just waiting for me. In all likelihood he'll put me on simply because Clara asked him to."

"A job is a job," Jane warned. "But that's your own affair. How did you make out with Monticelli?"

Elaine raced through the story, laughing as she remembered the maestro's eccentric manner. "And he seems to think I'll become a great singer, she finished. "I don't know why he believes that, but I hope he's right."

"He should know what he's talking about," Jane remarked, rising from the bed and picking up the bags. She walked out of the room and it was not until she returned that she referred to Eric.

"I didn't know whether to kick him out or let him stay," she told Elaine, slipping out of her dress. "But he looked so gloomy when I told him you were out that I let him stay."

Elaine felt herself coloring before Jane's questioning eyes. "I'm glad you let him stay. He asked me to marry him."

Jane nodded her head as though Elaine telling her something she had expected to hear. "Are you going to?"

Elaine placed her empty suitcases in the closet and walked over to her bed. Slowly undressing, she said, "What would you do?" evading a direct answer.

Jane shrugged her shoulders as she slipped into her nightgown. "I'm not you, so I don't have to worry about it."

"But if it were you?" Elaine persisted, hoping Jane would say something helpful. "Supposing you knew he would be disinherited if he married you. Would you consent anyway?"

Slowly Jane shook her head. "You'll do the wrong thing if you do marry him, Elaine. But I'm not saying that because of the way his mother feels. She doesn't deserve a bit of consideration. I'm thinking of what you would do to Eric."

"What I'd do?" Elaine repeated, surprised. She glanced wonderingly at the girl. "But I'd be good to him. I love him."

Jane laughed scornfully. "Love? Do you know the meaning of the word, Elaine? Do you know what loving a man really means?"

Elaine pondered over the question, wondering just what Jane was driving at. "All I know is that I care for Eric so much that I want to marry him; that I want to work for him; that I'd die for him if necessary."

"You know the answers," Jane said dryly. "But you only think you want to do those things. You're not really in love with Eric, Elaine. You're in love with love. Why, as soon as you found that he wasn't going to marry you you came here to New York to become a singer. You put him out of your mind just like that. Oh, you probably cried a little when you learned the bad news. And then, after while you probably became angry. But it wasn't heartbreak that caused your tears and anger. It was your vanity; that had been wounded, and because it was your vanity that had been hurt, you came here to New York. Had you loved Eric you would have gone back to California and made a fight for him."

"But I do love him!" Elaine cried, stung by Jane's softly spoken words. "And I am going to marry him. I came to New York because I was hurt. I wanted to hide that hurt. And I was angry, too, but not with him, just with his mother. When Eric proposed to me tonight I forgave him instantly."

"Of course you did," Jane said laconically. "Your pride had been restored. Elaine, perhaps this whole thing isn't any of my business, but I like you and I'm going to tell you exactly what I think."

"You'll destroy Eric! Yes, you'll destroy him just as his mother destroyed everything that was fine and decent in him by not permitting him to have a mind of his own. He's weak now and you're strong; instinctively he knows that you're a younger version of his mother and instinctively he wants the added protection you can give him. You're like a flame to a moth, Elaine, but just as the flame destroys the moth you'll destroy Eric. You'll use him up, or if you don't, make him even more spineless than he is now. His only salvation lies in a weak woman, a woman who cannot take care of herself, a girl who will force Eric to face life. If you marry him you'll either end up taking care of him, or end up by despising him for his weakness and lack of courage."

Elaine's quiet words angered Jane more than she cared to let on. Paradoxically, they amused her too. Strong? What had ever prompted Jane to make a remark like that? Why, all her life she had let others make decisions for her. The school, for instance; she hadn't wanted to go there, yet she had permitted Aunt Ella to send her.

She looked at Jane and was tempted to laugh at the thing she had said and then, recalling the manner in which she had forced Eric to choose between his mother and herself, the laugh died unuttered. She had forced him to make the choice; she could have married him secretly and his mother would never have known about it, might even have become reconciled to the match later on. But she had compelled him to openly defy her. Why? Was it because of vanity, as Jane had suggested; was it because some quality in her character made it impossible for her to yield an inch to Mrs. Reardon?

Wordlessly, she climbed beneath the covers and Jane, sensing she did not wish to speak further on the subject, turned off the lights. A sigh escaped Elaine's lips as she burrowed her head into the pillow. It had been a strenuous day. Things certainly happened in New York!

During the first part of her singing lesson the following morning Elaine felt buoyed up by the realization that she and Eric were going to be married. It was not until after she had sat down for a little rest that she recalled Jane's gloomy prediction that the marriage would prove a dismal failure and thinking of the things her roommate had said, a tiny, perplexed frown swept the joy from her face.

Again she wondered why Jane had seemed so sure she would prove a bad influence over Eric. Her words last night had seemed ridiculous and in the cold light of day they sounded even more so. Surely Jane couldn't have meant what she said.

A sudden thought snapped her erect on the chair. Could it be that Jane, aware that her brother was in love with her, was trying to do everything in her power to break up the match? Almost as instantly as the thought came to her Elaine dismissed it with a feeling of shame for even thinking it. Jane was not the type of girl who would stoop to such a despicable level. She had really been sincere last night; Elaine knew that even though she didn't know the reason for Jane believing what she did.

She sighed and dismissed the whole affair as being one of those puzzles one never solves. And Jane's opinion was of no importance anyway. She loved Eric, and that was that, and thinking of Eric she wondered whether he had received a reply to his telegram. She remembered also that they had not arranged a date for that night. But Eric would be over anyway and she hoped, for

THEATERS

Actual Events.

Two trains of the 1860 period, which have remained in use up to until two years ago, are used in "Young Tom Edison," starring Mickey Rooney at the Ohio theater. The trains play a heavy role in this picture, since much of the inventor's boyhood was spent as a "news butch," selling candy and magazines on trains. They also figure in the climax of the picture wherein Rooney as young Edison, warns an approaching train that a bridge is out by flashing the Morse code on the train whistle, after telegraph wires are blown down. This event actually happened in Edison's life.

Unfamiliar America.

"Of Mice and Men" which is showing at the Madison theater, brings a new portion of America to the screen. This is the America of the grain ranch hands—a wandering tribe of homeless and family-less men who follow the seasons. Charles Bickford plays the leader among these men. Betty Field has the important feminine role. Leading character parts are played by Burgess Meredith and Lon Chaney, Jr., who have the roles of George and Lennie.

Love and Tragedy.

Opening today at the Majestic theater is "Love Affair" with Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer in the leading roles. Miss Dunne, who has been associated with madcap comedy characterization in recent screen offerings, portrays a serious romantic role in this picture. The co-feature is "Jamaica Inn" with Charles Laughton in the lead. This is from the exciting story by Daphne du Maurier of the Cornish coast and the wreckers of the last century.

Renfrew of the Mounted.

RENFREW OF THE MOUNTED. Miss Maureen O'Hara is also to be seen at the Park theater beginning tomorrow in "Little Miss Molly." This is a sentimental story of Ireland. The second feature is Renfrew of the Royal Mounted in "Danger Ahead." James Newill and Dorothea Kent play the leading roles in this story of a battle to the finish between the mounties and an organized crime ring.

Detective Story.

Showing at the Ritz theater beginning Wednesday will be "Nancy Drew and the Hidden Staircase," with Bonita Granville, Frankie Thomas and John Littel in the cast. The co-feature is "Our Neighbors the Carters," starring Fay Bainter, Genevieve Tobin, Frank Craven and Edmund Lowe. The Carters are a typical American family, the sort which lives in any small town in the United States.

WHY BE SATISFIED WITH SMALLER CARS WHEN DODGE COSTS SO LITTLE MORE!

LISTEN!

Mr. E. M. Collett tells how he bought a Big Dodge Luxury Liner...the Car engineers praise...for only $3.41 a month more than smaller, low-priced car!

Come In and See the New Luxury Liner, Greatest Car Dodge Ever Built!

DON'T let anyone tell you that you can't afford a brilliant, new Dodge Luxury Liner! Just read what Mr. Ernest M. Collett, of Chicago, says: "...Like a lot of people, I always thought I couldn't afford a big car. 'The price of the smaller, four-door sedan I nearly bought was only $61.23 less than the big, four-door Dodge Sedan. Here's only a difference of $3.41 a month' in my payments. And look how much more I got in a Dodge! 'It gives me 'big car' performance and riding comfort! On top of this, I got something no other car could possibly give me—Dodge Engineering that means real economy on gas and oil and upkeep!' Come in today. Let us show how easy it is to buy a big Dodge Luxury Liner. October, 1933, through September, 1939. Latest figures available. And more and more engineers are buying Dodge every month. 1 figured on basis of 18 months. Time in Major Towns, Columbia Network, Thursdays, 9 to 10 P. M., E. & C.

Why 4,061 Engineers Bought Dodge in the Past 12 Months!

MOST ECONOMICAL! "Today's Dodge is the most economical of a long line of money-saving Dodge cars," says W. A. Pruett, Refrigeration Engineer, Los Angeles.

LOW UPKEEP! "Low gas and oil consumption, the small cost of upkeep, can be traced directly to one thing—Dodge Engineering," says Col. John A. Laird, Mechanical Engineer, St. Louis.

COSTS NOTHING EXTRA! "Why my Dodge has something that no other car can possibly match—Dodge Engineering," says George V. Sherman, Radio Engineer, Chicago.

SAVES ON GAS! "Dodge engineering means the kind of savings on gas and oil that spell money in your pocket," says Capt. Frank R. Culver, Yacht "Bridges," East Quogue, L.I., N.Y.

FINDS INDUSTRY LEADING ITSELF TO BETTER DAYS

Ford Official Says Business Makes Own Improvements, Government Can't.

had its beginning in the improved spirit of the American business man. When that spirit improved, the statistics also showed an improvement.

Scorning at the pessimists who talk about "the dying economy of America," Cameron said "the only things in our economic system that are dying are those ancient evils that still exist in industry and should be destroyed."

"The evils," he said, are child labor, poor working conditions, long hours, poor pay, and unimproved management.

"The only people who expect nothing better of the future are those who never had anything. Those who have had something at some time are still looking up," he said. "To say that the market is exhausted is fallacy. There is more unserved territory and more people are unserved than in the period when our big business industries were being built."

"When this country really gets going, the trucking and railroad industries which have been fighting each other will be throwing each other business," he asserted.

"During the past few years, business men have been allowing things to distract their attention. First it was 'prosperity,' then the depression which has never been handled and finally the New Deal, as ancient as the fall of Rome and as bad as so-called prosperity and depression combined."

A number of our social reforms of today will be thrown out, while the more substantial ones will evolve into more permanent assets, he said.

"Old age dependence will change to old age independence, social security will become a permanent help to the aged and unemployment insurance will become employment which, after all, is the only unemployment insurance there is."

"We hear that presidential election years are traditionally upsetting to business, but there are indications this one won't be," he continued. "I feel no uncertainty about next fall's election. I don't know whether the new president will be a Republican or a Democrat and I don't care much so long as he is an American."

Cameron was introduced by Jay S. Carns of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, president of the forum's club.

Preceding Cameron's talk the Ohioans, a Shelby orchestra played popular music, and Miss Sally Van Horn, Shelby high school girl, gave an original interpretation of "The Wizard of Oz."

CITY RENEWS CAR INSURANCE

Spends $1,000 for Property Damage, Liability Premiums

Renewal of liability and property damage insurance on all municipal-owned automobiles was announced today by Mayor William J. Locke.

The policies which include $5,000-$10,000 liability, and $5,000 property damage on each of the 40 trucks and passenger cars was renewed for one year. The premium will approximate about $1,000, the mayor said.

The firms sharing in the business were Holibaugh-Wolfe Inc., R. F. Cox agency and the Lumbermens Mutual.

Policies held on the motor equipment the past year were written by Tracy and Massa, Harry Wolfe and Rufus King, Locke said.

Three Kings Whose Crowns Are Uneasy

CHRISTIAN X

HAAKON VII

GUSTAV V

The saying "Uneasy rests the head that wears the crown" was never truer in Denmark, Norway and Sweden than it is today. Denmark, ruled by King Christian X, has already been completely subjugated by Nazi Germany's lightning blow, made under the guise of establishing a "protectorate." Norway, whose king is Haakon VII, is at war—against tremendous odds—with Germany refusing to submit to Nazi "protection." And Sweden, whose king is the venerable Gustav, is expected to be drawn into the war at any moment.

Neutrals Pay as Mine Laying Explodes War

Writer Asserts Allies Foresaw Full Consequences of Action; Chances Of Rumania 'Not Worth Dime.'

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

The Anglo-French mine-field, sowed in neutral Norwegian waters, has blown up in Europe's face as was a foregone conclusion.

The result is the beginning of the general European war which the world has feared and which now may be expected to spread.

The break has come after a series of most extraordinary events. On Saturday Norwegian Foreign Minister Koht declared that any such interruption of shipping would drag his country into the war. Sunday the Allies laid their mines and sat back to see what would happen. Last night Koht's prediction came true.

It must be assumed that the Allies weren't surprised, to say the least.

Nazism today charges that "for months England and France have attempted to make a new battlefield out of Scandinavia." The Allies have denied similar claims before, and will deny this.

However, the thing which matters is that a battlefield has been opened up there now. The important fact remaining to be disclosed is just how well set the Allies and Germany have been to take advantage of the situation.

Germany has moved first, but it will be most surprising if the Allies are slow in carrying out their promise "to extend full aid" to Norway, and to "fight the war in full association" with their new recruit.

We now shall get a chance to see the speed of Britain's new director of military operations, First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, whose handicraft one seems to see in the placing of the Narvik minefield which will rank in history as one of the stand on ceremony in trying to preserve themselves and defeat the enemy. That is tough on third parties, but war has no conscience and that's the way it goes.

The position of the United States naturally becomes more delicate with the spread of the war. Because of the increased dangers, this is the moment when Americans should safeguard their neutrality if ever they did. It is at times like this that some sensational incident may cause a public to stampede—and there are plenty of people in Europe who want to see us in the conflict.

DROPS CHARGE

Charges of failure to deliver a certificate of title to an automobile which he allegedly sold to a Mansfield man were withdrawn against Nicholas Molt, 297 Sturges avenue, in municipal court yesterday.

Hamp Rodgers who accused Molt of refusing to deliver the title for a car he had purchased from him last July filed the motion for withdrawal which was approved by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, and paid the costs in the case.

You would be reckless to give a dime for Rumania's chances of safety, and this means that the whole Balkan peninsula is in danger. Now that the lid is off, Germany most certainly will make sure of Rumania's oil supplies, which are vital to the reich.

The positions of Russia and Italy are, of course, of vast moment. Neither has indicated its abandonment of non-belligerency, nor is either likely to, pending a clarification of the situation.

The plunging of Norway and Denmark into the conflict is indeed shocking. But we must be prepared to accept the unalterable fact that when great empires are in a life and death struggles they are not going to

PROTESTS SAVE MOHICAN PARK A SECOND TIME

Garden Club Head at Bellville Gets Word From Taft Camp Stays Until June 30.

For the second time the protests of citizens in this section of the state have saved the CCC camp from being moved away from Mohican State park, at least temporarily.

Mrs. Chailey Lee, Bellville, who is regional director of District 7 of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs, today received notice from Senator Robert Taft that he had taken the matter before the director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, and had been promised that the camp would not be disturbed "at least until after June 30."

Orders had been received by camp officers to evacuate the camp by next Monday and plans were already under way for the move. Protests from citizens and Garden clubs in this section of the state have been going to Senators Taft and Vic Donahey.

The CCC camp has been at Mohican park for years, carrying out a conservation and improvement program, as well as maintaining the park which is used by thousands of people during the summer.

Mrs. Lee said today that the extension of time will permit the organizing of a general citizens protest from the towns and counties that are within the park area.

Officers at the camp said they had not received official orders to remain the camp, but had been informed "indirectly" and expected official orders sometime this week.
